OUR ROME LETTER.

ROME, FEB. 21.

The spring is giving signs at last of its coming after a winter more severe than we have experienced for many years. The season, after prolonged dulness, brightened up at the approach of Carnival, and there has been a round of balls and entertainments both public and private, while the street Carnival has been remarkable for gaiety and even originality. To the latter quality contributed the visits from Turin, Milan, Venice, Florence, Bologna, Naples, and Sicily of their own characteristic carnival kings, with their respective courts and emblematic cars. Rugantino, the Roman king of the revels, went in state to the railway terminus to meet his brother jesters from the North and South in quaint procession, composed of old-world coaches and last-century liveries and harness from the coachhouses of Roman princes; guards of honour on horseback with butterfly helmets, and some with powdered wigs and the three-pointed feathered hats of bygone days. Two great cars carried in front the symbols of Rome—a gigantic "goose" of the Capitol, whose head reached the second story windows of the houses in the Corso, and on whose back reclined a masker dressed in the Roman colours of orange and red, with flowing ermine-trimmed mantle, and intended to represent Father Tiber. The second car bore counterfeits of the ruins of the Castor and Pollux temple in the Forum, the Wolf and Twins, Pasquino, Marfario, and Madame Lucrezia, well-known Roman figures. Rugantino and his wife Nina, of Trastevere, were, of course, in traditional Roman costume. Next followed the Turinese masque in two cars, the first with four towers, a gigantic statue of Pietro Micca in imitation bronze, representing old Piedmont, and the shield of the city, with the rampant bull (Toro). Gianduja, the Piedmontese Punch, and his wife Giacometta, in costume, threw bouquets and bonbons right and left as the car moved along the streets. The Piedmontese band followed in a decorated car, looking like a great staircase, on the steps of which the peformers sat. Then came the Milanese jester, Meneghino, and his wife, Cecca, in a car having the tower and pinnacles of the beautiful cathedral. They threw bouquets and poems in Milanese dialect, celebrating the glory and beauty of their Duomo, as they call it. Venice was represented by two grand gondolas, and the Chioggiote fishermen, with Pantaleo, perhaps the best-known Italian clown to foreigners after the Neapolitan pulcinella. A gigantic syren in floating drapery embraced an equally enormous figure representing the Mediterranean, on the Naples car, with a regiment of punchinellos on it, about and behind, playing Funiculi-funicula. The Sicilian masque was very fine—the golden shell, Mount Etna, the Cyclops, a silver statue of Ceres, the emblems of Messina, Catania, Palermo, the dolphin, elephant, and eagle, and the masquers in costume of the Sicilian Vespers.

Fair Florence, with the Loggia of Bigallo and her stenterello with a whole court in leghorn hats, must not be forgotten; nor Bologna with the towers of Carisenda and the Asinelli; and the Bolognese clown, Dr. Balanzon, on a mediæval tower. Besides this national festival of folly, the Corso also saw a huge cardboard and plaster elephant with an Egyptain goddess sitting calmly on his back; an omnibus with six or seven full-grown babies in white pinafores and caps, driven by a coachman in the full dress of a Roman balia or nurse: another with a company dressed in newspapers, representing the press; even the cholera was brought in with an hospital litter and troop of attendants. All kinds of tunes were played: Royal March, Garibaldi's Hymn, and the favourite English air in "Patience." Every window and balcony in the Corso were full of spectators, especially on the Thursday and Shrove Tuesday. The Queen and the Prince of Naples were in the balcony of the Palazzo Fiano with a brilliant suite on both days, enjoying the fun. Even the grave King Humbert was seen there on Shrove Tuesday for a short time. On the evening of the last Carnival day the fairy illumination of the mocoletti, or tiny wax tapers, with the Bengal lights of the cars, closed the street amusements; but the masked balls, or veglioni, at the theatres and clubs, kept the city awake with the ceaseless rolling of trams, carriages, and cabs until the dawn of Ash-Wednesday. The two Court balls on the 3rd and 11th of February were very splendid. I will only mention Queen Margherita's toilettes. At the first she wore a train of heliotrope velvet bordered with silver embroidery, over white satin and lace, and a profusion of diamonds. At the second her train was of rose-orange velvet, a colour more becoming to her, and altogether a queenly costume. She wore her countless rows of costly pearls at this second ball, and her drapery was sustained on the left side by a very large circular clasp, or brooch of fine diamonds. At both balls her Majesty wore the splendid tiara of diamonds and great pear-shaped pearls given her by the King last year. White toilettes prevailed at these balls, and the effect is very bright and enlivening in the well-lighted reception-rooms and grand ballroom of the Quirinal Palace; but the fashion of dark shades in trains also prevails. Various tints of brown and grey look very well over brocaded or embroidered skirts on a lighter or warmer ground. Princess Santafiari, entirely clothed in mouse-coloured velvet, satin, and tulle, was very distinguished and much admired. One of the most beautiful women at the Court balls was Mrs. Astor, wife of the American Minister, who will be only too short a time here, owing to the new Presidential election. The German Ambassador, Herr von Kendell, gave a very grand ball, at which the King and Queen were present, at Palazzo Caffarelli, on the Capitol, a few days before the first Court ball, which also went off very well, and was remarkable for the beauty of the presents given in the cotillon. All the principal palaces of the Roman aristocracy remained closed most part of this winter, owing to the mourning for the Duchess Chigi Tarlonia; but Princess Pallavicini gave a couple of dances, and there was a grand ball last Sunday night at Prince Orsini's, where the papaline aristocracy all appeared, as well as the Liberal, or I ought to say, monarchical, and dancing was kept up with great spirit until 7 o'clock in the morning. A number of smaller parties have also enlivened the last few weeks, and Signor Igambati has given his musical treats to us—his classical concerts, with the assistance of the now celebrated quartette, Monachesi, Furino, Masi, and Jacocacci, in a new hall at Palazzo Sabini, the old Sala Dante being condemned to make way for a new street.

On Shrove Tuesday His Holiness Leo XIII. gave audience as usual to all the parish priests of Rome and the Lenten preachers, addressing them in a few eloquent words upon their high mission "in these deplorable times, when not only the interests of religion but also those of civil society are imperilled by the increasing development of impious and subversive principles."

Not altogether in harmony with the Pope's words have lately been certain articles in the Moniteur de Rome—the presumed Vatican organ—upon Irish affairs, in which the separation of Ireland from the British Empire is almost openly advocated. That conspicuous agitator, Michael Davitt, has been recently in Rome—perhaps he is still here—and it is said he has attempted to obtain a private audience of the Pope, without success. He was seen, however, at a grand function in the Sistine Chapel in a conspicuous place, and much attended to by one of the Pontifical chamberlains, an English convert of no long date. Monsignor Fortini, Apostolic Vicar of Queensland, was lately received in private audience by the Pope, who had a long conversation with him. Cardinal Chigi, the last Roman Prince in the Sacred College, is dead after a long illness. His remains were carried first to the church of Santa Maria del Popolo on a hearse drawn by the horses of the Chigi family, and surrounded by the deceased's servants in livery. The family and friends followed, and the church could scarcely hold the crowd who pressed to witness the absolution previous to the conveying of the body to the cemetery of San Lorenzo, outside the walls. There was a grand requiem mass on Thursday morning. Cardinal Chigi was very much beloved and popular, and is much regretted. He was archpriest of St. John Lateran, the Cathedral of Rome. Lent is a favourable season for visiting the venerable Roman churches on the Aventine and the Cœlian, owing to the stations—days on which all the pictures are unveiled, the crypts opened, and the relics exhibited. In spite of the enmity of extreme parties, the vast majority of Italians continue attached to the forms of their ancient Church. At Rome more men attend mass regularly and the four principal communions than in the days of the temporal power, when such attendance was compulsory. Queen Margherita, who for some years after Rome became the capital of Italy, had to go to the nearest parish church, and to whom the Pope at last conceded a chapel in the new buildings of the Quirinal Palace, has recently established a second mass there on Sundays and holidays for the convenience of the employees and servants of the Royal household. This measure has of course excited exaggerated gossip, and it was even said her Majesty ordered that any member of the family who did not attend should be fined.

The excavations between the Forum and the Palatine Hill, which had been suspended for some time, are now proceeding with vigour. The huge ugly granaries built against the northern angle of the hill are in course of demolition, and it is supposed the Church of Santa Maria Liberatrice will also finally be thrown down. In the excavations carried on for the foundations of the Teatro Nazionale, at the end of the Colonna gardens, a very fine life-size bronze statue has been discovered in good preservation. At first it was called a Hercules; but profound critics in art think it probably a portrait of an athlete named Polydamas, of whom it is recorded that his stature exceeded the common height of tall men. By the side of the Scala Santa, near St. John Lateran, a fine draped female statue has come to light, evidently a portrait, with an inscription on the pedestal purporting that it was erected by "Eubaulion, to the memory of his prudent mother-in-law!" Also, between the Villa Buonaparte and the Porta Salara there has been recently a very interesting discovery of a vaulted sepulchral chamber, the burying-place of the Licinian family, containing seven large marble urns of a different size and form from those we are usually acquainted with, and several marble sarcophagi, two of which are beautifully sculptured.

Since I began this letter the seventh anniversary of Pope Leo XIII.'s election has fallen, on Friday, 20th February. In the morning a number of distinguished Catholic foreigners were admitted to the private chapel of his Holiness, where he celebrated mass, and administered to them with his own hands the Holy Communion. At noon, all the cardinals, archbishops, bishops, and prelates in Rome, both foreign and Italian, with the dignitaries of the Vatican Court, secular as well as ecclesiastical, assembled to congratulate the Holy Father upon the happy occasion. He received them all with great benignity, and invited the cardinals and all the distinguished visitors to sit down around him. He conversed very pleasantly with various cardinals; expressed to Monsignor Langinieux (Archbishop of Rheims) his satisfaction at the prospect of the coming French pilgrimage of the principals of industrial bodies; invited Cardinals Pitra and Hergenroether to speak of the important labours in the Vatican archives; asked Cardinal Bartolini about two pending causes for beatification; and also discussed with the same cardinal and Cardinal Monaco La Valetta the grandiose works progressing at the Lateran Basilica. The audience lasted an hour, and the Pope ended it by causing to be distributed to all present copies of a handsome volume which has recently issued from the Vatican Printing Office, entitled "The Art of Tapestry and the New Gallery of Gobelins at the Vatican," by Professor Farabulini.

ODDFELLOWS' ANNUAL MOVABLE COMMITTEE.

The delegates composing the annual Movable Committee of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, Manchester Unity, met at the Masonic Hall, Parramatta, yesterday. The delegates were received at the railway station in the morning by the delegates and several members of the local lodge, the "Loyal Fountain of Friendship," No. 2. A procession was then formed, and, headed by the Cumberland Band, marched along the principal streets, afterwards proceeding to the Masonic Hall. The members were dressed in their regalia, and several carried their insignia of office, while a magnificent banner which headed the procession was a conspicuous object. The session opened at 10 o'clock, the Grand Master, Bro. W. Johnson, occupying the chair, and Bro. H. N. Howe, Deputy Grand Master, the vice-chair. The member for the electorate, Mr. Hugh Taylor, and the Mayor, Alderman Joseph Smith, were present as visitors during a portion of the sitting. The roll was called by Bro. E. Schofield, P.G.M., when the following delegates, in addition to the officers already mentioned, answered to their names:—Sydney District: W. Smith, P.G.M.; W. Gelding, P.G.M.; J. Hunter, P.P.G.M.; A. The Grand Master delivered an address, in which, after referring to the pleasure it gave him to be present, he expressed regret at the negligence and unconcern of 25 lodges with regard to sending in returns. The sickness and death rates were very much above the previous year, the death rate being 1 in 112, as against 140; and the sickness being 5 days 12½ hours, as against 5 days 5½ hours. The average amount of funds in hand per member was £9 13s. 3¾d. as against £9 19s. last year. On the 1st January, 1884, the order possessed a capital of £103,081 3s. 7¾d., whereas the amount is now £113,346 9s. 2½d. The number of members initiated during the year was 1411. The sum of £9181 7s. 8d. was paid away as sick pay, £3320 1s. as funeral donations, £1822 0s. 4d. as widows' and orphans' donations, and £12,153 16s. 5½d. as medical benefits. The credit balance was £10,265 0s. 7d. The G.M. concluded by declaring the A. M. C. duly opened for the transaction of business.

Bros. Keness, Smith, and King were chosen scrutineers. The auditors' report and balance-sheet, and the Grand Master and board of directors' report were then read. Bro. H. N. Howe, D.G.M., was elected Grand Master, and Bro. Swadling, P.D.G.M., deputy grand master. Bro. Schofield was re-elected C.S., Bro. A. Chapman, treasurer, and Bros. Gelding, Mitton, and Gibbons, auditors.

A fraternal telegram from the Grand Lodge officers of Victoria was read, and a committee was appointed to draft a reply to the same. A letter of congratulation was also read from the G.S. of the I.O.O.F., Sydney.

The following were elected members of the board of directors:—Sydney District: W. Johnson, D.G.M.; W. Gelding, P.G.M.; E. W. Deacon, P.P.G.M.; J. Hunter, P.P.G.M.; J. M'Laughlin, P.G.; J. The applications of the Loyal Burrangong Lodge, No. 29, Goulburn District, and Loyal Terrara Lodge, No. 97, Braidwood District, to be allowed to leave their respective districts and form a new district, to be called the Young District, were, after some debate, granted. The recommendation of the Sydney District for the A. M. C. to devise means for the amalgamation of the District Widows and Orphans' Funds, was then considered, and eventually the following resolution was carried on division:—"That the A. M. C. affirm the desirability of considering the advisability of forming the district Widows and Orphans' Funds into a Unity Fund." The committee then adjourned till 10 o'clock the following day. The delegates were entertained at a banquet in the Masonic Hall in the evening, at which Bro. W. F. Schey, P.G.M., Cumberland district, presided. The following toasts were honoured:—"The Queen," "The Governor," "The Delegates attending the A.M.C.," "The Parliament of New South Wales," "The Parramatta Municipality," "Oddfellows all over the world," "The Ladies," and "The Press."

PRINCE ALFRED HOSPITAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A case came before the house committee of the Benevolent Asylum yesterday in relation to the Prince Alfred Hospital which is, I think, deserving the consideration of its governing body.

A labouring man applied for the temporary admission of his three children, aged 6, 4, and 1½ years, into the Benevolent Asylum, his wife having that morning been admitted into the Prince Alfred Hospital suffering from typhoid fever; he stated his average earnings were 40s. per week, his rent 10s. per week, and the authorities of the Prince Alfred Hospital had charged him 10s. 6d. for the removal of his wife from her residence to the hospital, and he had to pay 15s. per week for her support while there.

I would ask, did those in authority make inquiries into this man's circumstances? and if so, how do they think it possible this man and his three children were to exist upon the 15s. remaining of his wages?

The Government have spent many score thousands upon Prince Alfred Hospital in its construction, and many thousands are paid annually towards its support; therefore I think that some consideration should be paid to the suffering poor—which, in my humble opinion, they have failed to do in this case. I am, &c.,

Burwood, April 8, 1885. S. T. PENFOLD.

NORFOLK ISLAND.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NORFOLK ISLAND, MARCH 31.

On Saturday morning last the Government steamer Thetis arrived, having on board Mr. H. Wilkinson, J.P., the special commissioner appointed by his Excellency to inquire into the internal working of the laws of the island, and to act as general adviser to the authorities, and in all matters to assist and promote the well-being of the community. Such it is stated is his commission, and he will reside amongst us six months. Mr. Wilkinson and the visitors who accompanied him met with a very hearty reception on landing, and were during their stay quartered with the Chief Magistrate, who did the honours in his usual genial way. Being Passion Week the characteristic ball had to be omitted, but the inhabitants left no stone unturned to make the visitors comfortable, and the hearty hospitality tendered to them was evidently much appreciated.

Yesterday a public meeting of the inhabitants was held in the courtroom, the magistrate presiding. There was a very full attendance. The commissioner addressed the meeting at some length, setting forth the objects of his visit, and referring principally to the previous arrangements connected with the visit of the trading vessel from Sydney. The arrangements referred to were confirmed at this meeting, and it is now beyond doubt that the island will be placed in regular communication with Sydney, and a ready market for our produce found.

On the 13th instant we had a hurricane that did considerable damage. It commenced blowing hard from the S.E. the day before, gradually hauling to the N.E., the glass registering 29·03, and at 8 p.m. on the day named it suddenly shifted to the N.W., and for two hours blew with hurricane force, uprooting trees and levelling fences right and left, scarcely any one escaping. The cutter Lizzie, that was lying off and on, rode the blow out well, with the loss only of main boom.

A very orderly public meeting was held on the 26th, to read the Governor's letters received by the Lizzie. Fines in future are to be enforced, and there is a penalty of 20s. attached to the destroying of a palm-tree (Kentia baueri) on Government land. Such was the tenor of the despatches.

The cutter Lizzie, from Auckland, and schooner Fairy Queen, from Noumea, arrived during the month: the former returned to Auckland, and the latter to Noumea with horses, sheep, and produce.

The Dunedin whaler Othello arrived on Sunday, six months out, clean. She will resume her voyage after taking in necessary recruits.

The schooner Orpheus, from Sydney, arrived on the 26th, and left again yesterday afternoon for Auckland. The mission vessel Southern Cross is daily expected from Auckland to commence the usual island visiting.

The health of the island is good.

UNIVERSITY OF SYDNEY.

The recent by-laws for the holding of bi-monthly meetings of the Senate of the University on the first and third Mondays in every month have been prepared, but have not yet received his Excellency the Governor's approval. The monthly meeting was held on Wednesday last, at the rooms of the Royal Society. There were present the Chancellor (his Honor Sir W. M. Manning), the Vice-Chancellor (Mr. Justice Windeyer), Professor Liversidge, Professor Scott, Dr. A. Renwick, Sir Alfred Stephen, Professor Stuart, Mr. H. C. Russell, Professor Gurney, Sir P. A. Jennings, Professor Stephens, Dr. H. N. MacLaurin, the Hon. Wm. Macleay, the Hon. E. Barton, Mr. Alex. Oliver, Mr. C. Rolleston. The minutes of previous meetings having been confirmed, and the financial business transacted, letters were laid upon the table from certain medical institutions in the United Kingdom replying to the application of the Senate for a proper recognition of its medical classes and degrees. That from the General Medical Council stated that the matriculation examination of the University of Sydney was already recognised as sufficient for the purposes of registration of medical students. The University of London has consented to accept the University of Sydney as an institution from which that University will receive certificates of attendance of students desirous of graduating therein. The communication from the Royal College of Surgeons stated that the courses of professional study extending over four years required for medical students in the University of Sydney, would be recognised as sufficient in the cases of those candidates who should have graduated in medicine before presenting themselves for the diploma of member of the College; students who have not graduated come under certain regulations which have been agreed to by the Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons. The University of Edinburgh gives to the University of Sydney the most extensive privilege granted in regard to recognition of attendance on medical classes—viz., the privilege of giving three out of the four years of medical study required for graduation in that University.

A number of applications for exemption from lectures, admission ad eundem gradum and statum, &c., were dealt with, and the final reports of the examiners in arts and science were brought up and adopted.

A report from the Faculty of Medicine, which had been withdrawn on a previous occasion for further consideration, was again presented with the following clause in addition:—"The Faculty of Medicine desire to inform the Senate that in the report formerly submitted in regard to St. Vincent's Hospital, there was no intention on the part of the faculty in any way to derogate from the authority of the Senate, or to advise it in any but the most respectful manner. The faculty, however, after the most careful consideration of the whole subject, feel constrained to adhere to their former report." The report of the faculty was received, and the following resolution was carried, on the motion of Dr. Renwick,—"That the authorities of St. Vincent's Hospital be requested to submit, for the consideration of the Senate, their rules for the appointment of the medical staff and their regulations with reference to the teaching given in the hospital."

The Senate then proceeded to the annual election of the Vice-Chancellor, in accordance with the by-laws. It was resolved unanimously, on the motion of Dr. Renwick, seconded by Mr. Rolleston,—"That Mr. Justice Windeyer be re-elected Vice-Chancellor."

The Chancellor stated that, on account of serious illness, Professor Smith had been forbidden by his medical advisers to continue his lectures for at least six months. He also laid upon the table Professor Smith's resignation of the office of Dean of the Faculty of Arts, and the Senate proceeded at once in accordance with by-law 32 to the election of a successor. It was proposed by Professor Liversidge, and seconded by Mr. Russell,—"That Professor Gurney be elected Dean of the Faculty." It was proposed by the Hon. E. Barton, and seconded by the Hon. W. Macleay,—"That Professor Scott be elected." The motions being put to the meeting, resulted in the appointment of Professor Scott. In order to carry on the work of Professor Smith's department during his illness, Mr. R. G. Goggs, M.A., was appointed to deliver the course of experimental physics prescribed for first-year students. The annual report of the Senate for 1884 was adopted.

The following resolution was also carried,—"That, pending the appointment of a professor whose department will include the French and German languages and literatures, all lectures and examinations in these subjects shall be placed under the control of the Board of Studies."

FORESHORES AND OYSTERS.

In the Legislative Assembly last week, attention was drawn to a series of applications for the leasing of foreshores in the harbour of Port Jackson for purposes of oyster culture, which applications, having been gazetted on the 6th ultimo, would come on in due course to be dealt with by the Commissioners of Fisheries and the Government. The honorable and zealous member who drew attention to these applications, made special reference to the fact that two gentlemen, Messrs. Stuart and Harnett, applicants for some 7000 yards of foreshore in the parish of Willoughby, on the North Shore side of the harbour, had also endeavoured, though unsuccessfully, to close certain public roads in the same district in order to acquire leases of the foreshore, and added that he intended to watch with a jealous eye the conduct of the Fishery Commissioners in regard to these applications.

No one will care to question the right of any member of the Legislature to watch all such applications with jealous eyes; but when a charge is made against the applicants for these leases, that "they have been improperly trying to acquire the foreshores of Port Jackson," the public, on whose behalf these foreshores are held by the Crown, becomes at once an interested party in the matter.

We gather, from an answer supplied by Mr. Dibbs to a question asked by Mr. Abigail, that the total length of foreshores in Port Jackson for which oyster-culture applications have been made is 29,300 yards, or about 16 miles. Those applications have been made either under the Oyster Fisheries Act of 1884, or the earlier legislation, which it repealed. And so far as appears from the applications themselves, or any circumstances surrounding them, the applicants are perfectly within the rights conferred by the law.

What those rights are, or are intended to be, concerns the general public and the lessees themselves far more than it concerns either the public or the lessees, to know that some member of Parliament, or even that the Mayor, in the interest of the citizens, will be looking on with "jealous eyes" at the action of the Commissioners of Fisheries or the Government.

Now, by an Act of the Legislature passed only some nine months ago, the Governor (and not the Commissioners, as some people have erroneously assumed) is empowered to grant oyster culture leases of Crown lands in any tidal waters for terms not exceeding 15 years, with right of renewal, and embracing not more than 2000 linear yards of foreshore, except in special cases.

For these leased foreshores the rent is £1 per 100 yards; and in addition to the rent a royalty of 8s. per bag of 3 bushels is payable on the product of oysters.

The lease is declared by the Act to vest in the lessee and his representatives no more than the exclusive right, during the currency of the lease, of laying and planting oysters on, and of dredging and taking oysters from, the area leased, subject to a right of entry at any time by any inspector or other authorised officer. The lease is also subject to such conditions as may be provided by regulation, or approved by the Governor.

A subsequent enactment empowers the Governor to revoke any lease, on the recommendation of the Commissioners, if default be made by the lessee, within two years from the date of lease, in carrying out the conditions of the lease.

And another section permits the Governor to withdraw any area of Crown lands containing oyster deposits, whether applied for as a lease before or after the passing of the Act, from the leasing provisions of the Act, and to declare the portion so reserved a public oyster reserve.

In the absence of approved forms of leases or regulations defining the occupation rights of lessees, it is manifestly impossible to state precisely how far the rights of the public to the Crown lands called foreshores will be interfered with by the special or exclusive privileges conceded to the lessees. Doubtless, in a short time, the Commissioners will have determined the form and conditions of the leases, or will have framed regulations definitive of the rights of the lessees in regard to their leased areas. But in the meantime it may be as well to point out that the foreshores of the harbour—or in other words, the portion of land situate between the line of mean high and low water mark, belong to the Crown, just as other Crown lands, and, except so far as the Crown chooses to acquiesce in the general public uses of them, are not public property in the same sense as a park or a street. Of course when these foreshores are under water, the public right of highway over them attaches, but at all other times they are on the same footing as other Crown lands, with probably this exception, that anyone may take oysters from unleased foreshores above low water mark for his own personal consumption without rendering himself liable to a penalty.

The whole scope of the Oyster Fisheries Act is utterly adverse to the notion which seems to prevail in some quarters, that the lessees of foreshores will be permitted by law to enclose their leased areas or prevent the public from traversing them, or doing anything not injurious to oyster culture which they would otherwise be entitled to do. This is made clear by the 6th section of the Act, which prohibits the doing of certain things within the limits of a leased area which would be likely to interfere with the growth of the lessee's oysters. For example: No person, except the lessee, his agents, or servants, may within any leased area deposit ballast, stone, or rubbish, or dredge or drag over the bottom with any implement, or use any implement of fishing except a line and hook, or place anything within such area likely to injure the oysters.

This section of itself shows clearly that free access over leased areas is not to be prohibited to the public, provided they commit no acts injurious to the lessee's property. It is therefore difficult to understand the outcry which has been made against the granting of oyster culture leases within Port Jackson, and it is equally difficult to understand what the present applicants have done to deserve the charge that "they have been improperly trying to acquire the foreshores of Port Jackson."

So far as anything has yet been disclosed, those applicants are entirely within their legal rights; while, if they fail to carry out the conditions of their leases, those leases will be forfeited. On the other hand, the Government may refuse to grant the leases, for there is no compulsion in the matter; or the sites applied for may be proclaimed public oyster reserves.

THE "G. F. S."—WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—This question has been asked by "A Resident" in a letter to you of the 1st instant. The answer is simple. It is the initial letters of a society called The Girls' Friendly Society, a society in which women join to help each other to lead pure and holy lives. This is its object. It has only three central rules, on which its whole working is based.

1. Associates to be members of the Church of England, or of any church in communion with the Church of England, no such restrictions being made as to members. The organisation of the society to follow as much as possible that of the Church, being diocesan, ruridecanal, and parochial.

2. Associates and members to contribute annually to the funds.

3. No girl who has not borne a virtuous character to be admitted as a member;—such character being lost, the member to forfeit her card. The society belongs to no social grade. The Queen of England is its patron; the Royal princesses are found amongst its workers. No woman is too high in rank to belong to it; none too lowly to join it. Any woman may be proud to belong to it, for its only qualification is "a virtuous life." Every nobleman ought to be thankful that those dear to him belong to a society of pure women, banded together to help each other to lead such lives. I will quote the words of the authorised, and often-printed, "Objects of the society": "For mutual help, religious and secular; for sympathy and prayer." Its associates and members in Great Britain number over one hundred thousand. In this colony it is but in its infancy, being only four years in existence; still its associates and members here are over fifteen hundred. The society has an office at 3, Wentworth-court, Phillip-street, Sydney.

Its publications are there for sale. All information can be obtained there as to its numerous ways of helping, and being helped, by women of all classes of society in New South Wales. Yours, &c., AN ASSOCIATE.

IRISH "NATIONALISM."—Mr. Deasy, M.P., presiding at a meeting of the Central Branch of the National League at Dublin, said the recent quiet attitude of the Irish people was due to national reaction following a long period of excitement; but now they had rested they would become active again. The firm and gentle Spencer, he believed, would shortly follow French and others in disappearing from Irish public life. England's hands were now full, and the Irish people should take every opportunity that offered to strike a blow at her power to free themselves from her dominion and control. In order to do this they must get rid of the English garrison—the landlords. The Land Commission Court would assist them in this, for the rents which the court fixed were such as it would be impossible for them to pay. He thought that within the year there would be another strike against rent; for he questioned if the land, with fair foreign competition, would afford any rent.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—WEDNESDAY, APRIL 8.

Banco Court.—(Before his Honor the CHIEF JUSTICE and a jury of four.)

PEELE AND OTHERS V. ALCOCK AND ANOTHER (PART HEARD).

Mr. Darley, Q.C., and Mr. Browning (for Mr. Bird), instructed by Messrs. Want, Johnson, and Co., appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Rogers and Mr. O'Connor, instructed by Messrs. Gannon and M'Laughlin, for the defendants. In this action, which was brought to recover damages for losses incurred on the purchase of 3000 hides, owing to an alleged breach of warranty on the part of defendants, further evidence was given for the plaintiffs, and the examination of Richard R. Gibbs, Thomas S. Horrodaile, and other witnesses, taken by commission in London, was read to show the quality of the hides, the proportion of inferior to heavy ox hides, and the prices realised. Edmund A. Ebsworth, broker, was also called, and stated that 60lb. hides would not lose more than 2 or 3 lb. each on the voyage from Sydney to London if they were properly pickled.

For the defence, Daniel M'Cauley, one of the defendants, stated that when Peele called upon him with reference to the hides, he said he wanted 1000, averaging from 56lb. to 60lb., and witness undertook to supply them at 3¼d. per lb. delivered at the store. Two or three days afterwards Mr. Peele told witness that he had appointed Mr. Buckland as his agent to select the hides, and next day Mr. Buckland went down to defendants' store; there were 4000 or 5000 hides in the store at the time, and when Mr. Buckland made the selection the hides were shaken to get the salt out and then rolled up. About 250 were rejected out of the first thousand, and when the lot were pickled they were weighed in lots of 25 each. Subsequently, at Peele's request, witness undertook to see the hides stowed, as he did not understand anything about it. About a month afterwards plaintiffs purchased 2000 hides, and when Mr. Buckland made the selection he rejected over 600. While the hides were being shipped on board the Kent Mr. Peele came to witness in an excited state and complained to him that there was a large quantity of salt in the hides, and that he would not have them. It was then arranged that they should test 100 hides, and witness promised that whatever tare was got on the 100 would be allowed on the 2000. Peele agreed to this as being quite fair, and after the hides had been tested it was agreed that the original amount allowed for tare should be increased. Witness denied that he ever agreed to supply plaintiff with heavy ox hides, and as a matter of fact hides of that description were being sold at that time at 4½d; he did not recollect saying to Mr. Peele that he could soak hides and make a 40lb. hide weigh from 50lb. to 60lb., but he might have told him that Mr. Peele would get no "soakers" from him; he was not aware that there were any cow hides in his store, and he left the selection entirely to Mr. Buckland, and allowed him to pick whatever hides he liked. They were obtained from the Glebe Island Abattoirs, and salted when they reached the store. He quite believed that what were sold to plaintiffs consisted of ox hides, and as he sent home over 1000 inferior hides by the Kent, it was quite possible that the lots had become mixed in discharging. Towards the close of the selection of the 2000 the men picked out 68 hides during the dinner hour without shaking them, and when witness heard of it he allowed 4lb. tare per hide on the 68, instead of 2lb. James John Alcock, the second defendant, was also examined, and denied that when they were testing 100 hides he threw down 30, nor did he pick ox hides; he only picked 10, and when Mr. Peele took exception to what he was doing he did not proceed further; 40 of the hides tested had just arrived from the store, and formed portion of the 68 which had not been unrolled and shaken. When the hundred hides had been swept it was found that the salt weighed 294lb., and Mr. Peele expressed himself as perfectly satisfied. Evidence was also given as to the loss in weight on hides during the passage from Sydney to London; and Andrew Howard Moore, manager for Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, stated that the difference in the gross weight of butchers' or green hides in Sydney and London was from 8lb. to 12lb.

At this stage the case was further adjourned until to-morrow.

METROPOLITAN QUARTER SESSIONS.

WEDNESDAY.

(Before Mr. District Court Judge DOWLING.)

The sittings of the above Court were resumed at 10 a.m. at Darlinghurst. Mr. Clarke Irving prosecuted on behalf of the Crown.

SENTENCES.

The following sentences were passed on prisoners who had pleaded guilty:—Robert Adair, forgery and uttering, two years' hard labour; Frederick Laurent, stealing from a dwelling (two cases) and larceny, was sentenced to five years' penal servitude on both charges, the sentences to be concurrent. Robert Jones, alias Smith, who had been found guilty on the previous day of breaking and entering, was sentenced to five years' hard labour.

ALLEGED ROBBERY FROM THE PERSON.

Frederick Trueman, charged with having on the 13th March stolen a gold watch, also an albert and locket, value £30, from Richard Mobley, was found not guilty.

ROBBERY IN A CROWD.

Francisco Valvassore, an Italian labourer, was found guilty of having, on February 14, stolen a watch from one Thomas Fitzgibbon, a cabinetmaker, resident in Goodlet-street. Prosecutor, about 8 p.m., formed one of a crowd who were watching a street auctioneer disposing of his wares at "Paddy's Market," George-street, and felt a sudden jerk at his waistcoat. On looking down he found his watch gone, and the chain hanging loosely, prisoner being about two feet away. A week or so later the accused attempted to pawn the watch, and was taken into custody. His Honor reserved sentence, a previous conviction of six months' imprisonment having been recorded against the prisoner.

LARCENY.

Peter Frederick, a Madras coolie, was found guilty of having stolen a watch from a fellow-countryman named Cook. Both men had arrived from Port Mackay, Queensland, where they had worked as sugar plantation hands, and fraternised in Sydney. Prisoner ascertained from the prosecutor where he had his watch and money deposited, and was later on found with the former in his possession. It was subsequently sold to a man named Parsons, who disposed of it to another lascar. A sentence of six months' hard labour was inflicted.

CHARGE OF STEALING FROM THE PERSON.

John Ryan, a young man, pleaded not guilty to having, on March 21st, stolen £9 10s. and a bank book from a pensioner named Henry Joyce. Prosecutor, an old soldier decorated with a number of medals and clasps, had come to Sydney from Goulburn to volunteer for service with the New South Wales Soudan Contingent, but being refused by reason of there being no vacancies, he indulged in a day's drinking, and became helplessly intoxicated. His allegation was that prisoner had escorted him to a vacant allotment off Bathurst-street during a heavy rainstorm, and there robbed him. On the other hand, a witness showed that the accused had, at prosecutor's request, endeavoured to find him lodgings, to prevent his being arrested for drunkenness, and that Ryan subsequently overheard a man referring to having picked up a bank-book. He recognised the name upon it, and having again noticed the prosecutor passing along a main thoroughfare several days later on, he crossed over and related the circumstance. Prosecutor thereupon gave him into custody on a charge of theft. A verdict of not guilty was returned. His Honor quite concurred in the finding, and cautioned the accused to be more careful for the future how he interfered with drunken men.

CRIMINAL ASSAULT.

Robert Henry, a young railway labourer, was found guilty, with a recommendation to mercy, on a charge of having criminally assaulted a girl named Adeline Urch, then above the age of 10 years and under the age of 14 years, namely, 13 years and 11 months. The facts of the case were of an extremely painful nature. The girl in question, who was apparently over the age stated, left her parents' home of her own accord, and accompanied the prisoner to Moruya. She had previously told him her proper age, and understood him to be about 28 years old. Upon hearing that a warrant had been issued for his arrest he at once gave himself into custody. Sentence was deferred until this morning. A further charge of abduction was withdrawn by the Crown.

CHARGE OF STEALING.

Thomas Maloney, a newly-arrived young labourer, was acquitted on a charge of having stolen and pawned a ring, value about 20s., the property of James Anscombe, a dairyman, residing at Petersham. Prosecutor's wife (a sister of the prisoner), when placed in the witness box on oath, frankly admitted having given her brother permission to pawn the ring, provided her husband did not know of it; but having only recently married, she did not like to confess having done so until the last moment.

The following is the list of cases set down for hearing to-day:—John Gartman, larceny; Francis Bequest, attempt to commit suicide; George Gibbons, attempt to discharge firearms; Sarah Martin and Lydia M'Kenzie, attempt to commit suicide; Andrew Rouel, larceny; John Pereira, stealing from the person; William Nakhan, entering a dwelling; William Gilberthorpe, larceny; Joseph Warren, larceny.

In the report of the case on Tuesday, in which John Peters was found guilty of stealing from a dwelling, the address of Mrs. Collins (one of the witnesses for the prosecution) was given as Yurong-street. The lady in question resides in Young-street.

Mr. Leopold Yates, D.S.M., presided in the Charge division of the WATER POLICE COURT, and dealt with a number of minor offenders. Five seamen belonging to the steamship Moreton were charged with disobeying the lawful commands of the captain of the vessel, which was in consequence detained at Wollongong for seven hours. The charge was not pressed against the defendants, and the Bench took a lenient view of the matter and sentenced each of them to seven days' imprisonment. Several persons were fined for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. Mr. Whittingdale Johnson, D.S.M., disposed of a large number of cases in the Summons division.

At the REDFERN POLICE COURT, before Mr. T. K. Abbott, S.M., John Griffin and Louisa Brown were each fined £5, with 4s. 10d. costs of court, or three months in gaol, for having used obscene language within hearing of persons passing in the Botany-road. John Bourke, for a similar offence, committed in Absolom's-lane, was fined £3, with 4s. 10s. costs, or two months' imprisonment. It was stated by the police that the prisoner had recently recovered £100 in an action against the Government for injuries received by his wife in a tram accident, and that since then he had been continually in a state of intemperance. Reginald Beaumont, a confectioner, was fined 10s. and costs for keeping his shop open on Sunday, the 29th ultimo. Thomas O'Brien, a woolwasher, was charged with assaulting George Fall, the landlord of the Pier Hotel at Botany, on the 31st ultimo. The complainant stated that prisoner came into his bar at about 8 p.m., in company with two others; they were all drunk, and he therefore refused to serve them; the prisoner commenced making a disturbance, and witness put him out of the bar, when he suddenly stooped down, and catching witness by the legs threw him backwards down a flight of stone steps. Prisoner, against whom several previous convictions and sentences were recorded, including one of six months for breaking and entering, was fined £5, with 4s. 10d. costs, in default two months' imprisonment.

At the BALMAIN POLICE COURT, before Mr. G. W. F. Addison, S.M., Patrick Rowe was brought before the Court in custody, and in a most filthy condition, charged with having no visible lawful means of support. He pleaded guilty, and was sent to gaol for three months with hard labour. Jonathan Pyper, for using obscene language within hearing of persons passing in Curtis-road, was fined 20s. and 4s. 10d. costs, or 14 days. William Thompson, for being at such a distance from his springcart in Darling-street as not to have the control and government of the horse drawing the same, was fined 20s, and 2s. 6d. costs, or 7 days. Peter Staunton, for placing a quantity of sand on the carriage-way in Short-street, and not immediately removing it on being requested by a police constable, was fined 20s. and 2s. 6d. costs, or 7 days. Other cases of an unimportant nature were also disposed of.

CORONER'S INQUESTS.

Yesterday morning the City Coroner, Mr. H. Shiell, J.P., held two inquests at Darlinghurst Gaol. The first (an adjourned inquiry) was touching the death of a prisoner named Alexander Barry, who strangled himself in his cell on Friday afternoon. The deceased was serving a term of imprisonment for arson, and he had been for some time confined in the Criminal Lunatic Asylum at Parramatta, as he was thought to be insane. The inquiry was a very lengthy one. A number of witnesses were examined, and ultimately the jury returned a verdict that the deceased died from suffocation by strangulation, and, further, that the strangulation was his own act.

The second inquest was on the body of a prisoner named Mary Ann M'Gowan, 29 years of age, who died in the gaol hospital on Tuesday afternoon. The deceased was undergoing a sentence of six months' imprisonment for vagrancy, and she had been under medical treatment since the 17th of January last. After hearing the evidence, a verdict of died from natural causes was returned.

TRESPASS CASE UNDER the LAND ACT.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

HAY, WEDNESDAY.

On the opening of the trespass case, Whittingham v. Brewer, yesterday, both sides decided to call no further witnesses. His Honor thought the evidence as to the intention of the plaintiff to dedicate the road was shady. Mr. M. H. Stephen, in his address to the jury, said the evidence as to dedication was no shadier than some of plaintiff's evidence. Brewer was known as a good neighbour and good citizen, and the jury should not give vindictive damages. In the case cited by Mr. Salomons the defendant committed a gross act of disrespect, hence the jury gave heavy damages. In this case there was evidence of the track having been used for many years, and that Brewer had never been informed by plaintiff that the route was closed. Brewer was accused by Mr. Salomons of high-handed proceedings; but there was no tittle of evidence to prove that assertion, on the contrary he only acted as any other would in ignorance, and Whittingham made no attempt to enlighten him. As to the claim of £600, that meant the value of the run per annum, which would be one million pounds. Surely Whittingham would not like to have his run valued for assessment at that rate. In evidence it was shown that there was no grass, and that defendant's sheep had no water at the tank. Regarding the roads, he thought the Government should at once gazette them, and then Brewer and others would have right-of-way. The Government appeared to think that the roads were public roads, but such was not the fact. As the roads had been used for so many years, plaintiff should not have objected to let the roads be used. The evidence really showed that plaintiff had intended to dedicate the roads; that is to say, to continue the right of user. Plaintiff had purchased from the Crown along the route from year to year, yet the traffic had been continued. Plaintiff should be judged by his acts, not by what he had said in this Court. If he allowed the traffic, that was evidence of his intention to dedicate the roads. The evidence of user was evidence of an intention to dedicate; and there was evidence of user after the purchases along the route by plaintiff. Regarding the alleged prosecution of other trespassers, it must have been for trespass on private land, for the local benches could not adjudicate on questions of road. That got rid of an attempt to make out that the road had been stopped. Whittingham could simply say he had given verbal instructions to prevent the passage of stock, and the alleged advertisement had not been produced. Mr. Brewer's action in petitioning for stock route through Willandra seemed to have roused Whittingham's ire, and he at once had taken action in the Supreme Court. Damages should be only fair. Mr. Salomons then addressed the jury. He did not ask for vindictive damages, but for substantial damages. There was no evidence whatever of the existence of the road or its dedication. Whittingham had laid out £100,000 in protecting his run from selectors by buying up land. As regards the question of damages, had Brewer come to plaintiff and expressed sorrow for his error, and agreed to refer the matter to arbitration, the matter would have been amicably and cheaply settled; on the contrary, Brewer had fought plaintiff to the last point with the best legal talent in the land. Therefore, it was too late for defendant to ask for consideration. Defendant really attempted to cut up Willandra station by taking out of it a large area in its centre for a road. One of defendant's witnesses, Berry, acknowledged that no sheep had been allowed over the track for five years. Defendant had called a cloud of witnesses to saddle plaintiff with expense; but it would fall on himself. How could anyone attempt to hold that the road could exist through private land? The right of user over tracks had been stopped by Act of Parliament, because it had been found that it would create a state of intolerable confusion. As to the contention that plaintiff had tacitly dedicated lands, why, no power on earth could force a man to dedicate his freehold except of his own free will, and by his open and legal act. Had a highway been granted through Willandra, it would compel plaintiff to fence in both sides, which would cost an enormous sum for 56 miles of fencing. He quoted the Diseases in Sheep Act, 41 Vic., No. 19, sections 16 and 17, to show that the track could not exist as was attempted to be made out. A person could not go over freehold to get on Crown lands, such as the remnant of the track; therefore there was no track. The fact of the season being bad made the trespass worse. Still, they did not go in for grass so much as for general trespass and the damage to stud ewes. Regarding the so-called roads, they simply were pieces of Government land inside plaintiff's run. Regarding damages, they asked for that caused by rams, water taken, trouble in keeping their sheep away from defendant's, grass consumed, and general damage, as filed. His Honor summed up exhaustively, explaining the pleas and the law bearing on them. The great question to be decided was—Had defendant the right of way over private land? If not, the few remaining bits of Government land would be of no value. The law was that right-of-way could be established by showing that a highway had been used by the public generally for a number of years, the owner allowing them to use it, and he, by his action, showing that he intended to dedicate it for a public road. It then became for ever a road. Evidence that the track had been so used was evidence of intended dedication. User of that kind had been established in England by periods of user of two, three, 11, 15, and 21 years. Mere neighbourly permissions to pass over land were not proofs of user. The fact that an owner might be away, and knew nothing about the using of his land for a highway, vitiated the right of user, if he put a stop to the practice the moment he knew of it. One such act would override 20 acts of user. In this case plaintiff declared that he had taken such a step. His Honor thought that the rebutting evidence on this plea was the stronger. As to the dedication, in a similar manner, of Crown lands, a decision had been given by the Privy Council to the effect that dedication could take place. The Government here, however, saw what would be the effect of that decision, so they passed the 1881 Act, which rendered it impossible for right-of-way to be established against the Crown. Though the Government still allowed all reasonable access to and passage through Crown lands, the 1861 Land Act did to an extent prevent any such rights being established. But it was thought proper to make matters certain by passing the 1881 Act. An attempt had been made to establish the right of user against the Crown; but he had at once overruled it. Another contention had been to take lands purchased before the passing of the 1881 Act, but it specially barred such pleas. His Honor laid much stress upon the acts of plaintiff's manager in preventing stock using this track, and appeared to sum up in plaintiff's favour. He thought the rebutting case was much stronger than defendant's. There was no doubt the track did exist through Willandra as claimed. His Honor, in quoting the Diseases of Stock Act, said it was most difficult to read different Acts so as to make them agree. He thought instead of passing amending Acts, it would be better to annul all and pass a new Act, which would prevent expense and confusion. The Diseases of Stock Act certainly prevented the route being used, owing to the purchased land intervening on the route, the Act stating that stock must be taken by the nearest direct route. No doubt squatters purchased in this fashion blocks between Government blocks to stop stock from travelling, and keep out the public. He would leave the question of damages to the jury, who were the best judges. The evidence was totally contradictory. The loss in regard to ewes was made out to be £600. Nothing had been done by Brewer with a high hand, though he had taken determined proceedings to obtain right of passage through the run. They were to assess damages as to private land and track of Government land. The jury wished to know if the three-chain road was within the distance allowed by the Act, and could not the track be availed of to get on it. His Honor said that this state of things could not exist; but if it did, Brewer could go through. The jury, after returning twice into Court to ask questions, finally returned a verdict to the effect that there was no highway on the Willandra track, assessing damages at £100—that is, £50 paid in by defendant, and an additional £50; and finding there had been no trespass as regarded Crown lands. The verdict carries costs, which will be taxed.

LECTURE.

There was a good attendance at the School of Arts Saturday evening lecture on the "Russian Invasion of India," by Mr. James Hales, commencing with a brief sketch of Indian history from the outset of British settlement in India. A description was given of the contests that ensued with the ambitious French and the avaricious Dutch, and of the gradual absorption of territory by Great Britain. A graphic account was given of the beneficial results that had invariably followed British occupation, not only by the rest and immunity enjoyed from the continual attacks of invading armies, but by the spread of education, the impartial administration of justice, and the abolition of suttee, infanticide, and other evils. These changes, the lecturer maintained, had rendered the people as a whole so contented with British rule that Russia, being essentially barbarous, would entirely fail either to sow disaffection among them, or to compete successfully with England for their goodwill. While admitting the beneficial results that had followed Russian conquest among the lawless hordes of central Asia, the lecturer expressed the opinion that the revolution which had occurred in commercial affairs, by Indian competition with Russia in the growth of wheat, would make it extremely undesirable in the interests of Russian farmers and merchants that any advance should take place in that direction. Should, however, the force of military public opinion compel the Russian Government to attack Afghanistan it was shown how the progress of the troops from the Caspian or from Merv might be effectually checkmated by British forces landed at Bushire in the Persian Gulf, or transported through Afghanistan, via Quetta, Candahar, or Peshawur, the latter town being now in direct railway communication with the whole of India. The lecture was listened to with great attention, and was followed by a hearty burst of applause. The secretary announced that the subject for next Saturday would be "A Mediterranean Trip," to be illustrated by new slides just imported by the committee.

THE USE OF OIL IN NAVAL WARFARE.—We have all heard of the various mechanical contrivances invented for utilising the well-known efficacy of oil in calming a stormy sea. An American inventor now proposes to defend harbours by means of oil disposed in a particular way on a raft or series of rafts of peculiar construction. The oil is to be fired suddenly, and the attacking vessels are to find themselves suddenly tossing in a fearful lake of fire, with waves of flame 200 feet high. The idea is worthy of Dante.

OUR DUTY TO THE SUBJECT RACES.

A large congregation assembled at St. James' Church yesterday evening to witness the ceremony of baptism administered by the Primate to half-a-dozen Chinese, who had been gathered in to the Church through the efforts of the Chinese Mission, the superintendent of which is the Rev. J. D. Langley. At the conclusion of the interesting ceremony, the Primate delivered an address on "Our Duty to the Subject Races," basing his remarks on John x. 11. "Other sheep I have which are not of this fold." The Primate said: We meet to-night, my brethren, to witness the baptism of our own brethren in a common humanity—now still more our brethren in Christ—to welcome them in the name of our Master to the true Christian life, and to pray that His grace given them may "increase in them more and more till they come to His everlasting kingdom." We also meet in sympathy and thankfulness for the work of the Chinese mission, labouring as it does earnestly, and not unsuccessfully, among those who are already our fellow-citizens, and who we would have to be our fellow Christians. Would that such baptisms were more frequent, and the fruits of our mission more abundant! We cannot but feel that, if our own Christianity were more vital and practical, or if Christian progression showed itself more fully in the example of the higher life, that is the true "mind of Christ Jesus," if our Christian faith—to use the New Testament phrase—"overflowed" more largely in zeal for the conversion of others to that knowledge of God in which it found for itself the life eternal, these trophies of society would be multiplied a hundredfold, and heathenism would cease to be heathenism in the midst of a professedly Christian land. Feeling this, my brethren, as we must feel it, it seems but natural to-night to bring before our minds the thought of what is our duty as a community to the subject-races, brought by God's providence more or less under our control. What is our duty as members of the Church of Christ to these wandering sheep, for whom He died, brought similarly within the reach of our Christianity. The two duties must blend in harmony with each other, for both are duties to humanity and to God. He has laid on our English race, as such, a great responsibility before Him, in that unexampled power, for which we must necessarily give account. He has bidden His Church to leaven the advance of English power by the higher life of English Christianity. May He grant that both duties may be more and more largely done. That for the fold of a true civilisation, and still more for the fold of a true Christianity, we may recognise as His, and gather to Him, "the other sheep" wandering, it may be, in ignorance of Him, but yet His sheep for whom He died. What is our duty, as a community, still in profession Christian, as far as the vast majority of our people is concerned, towards what we may call broadly the subject-races, submitted in different degrees to our rule or influence? There are, first, the remains of the Aboriginal tribes, which once covered this vast continent, rich in its native treasures, of which we have taken possession. It is unhappily, impossible to doubt that in the past we have incurred in this matter grievous responsibility before God for oppression and injustice and needless bloodshed. In our own colony the survivors are but few; in the north and west of Australia they are still many. What shall be our action towards "the remnant that are left?" There are the foreign immigrants, especially the Chinese immigrants of whom we naturally think to-day, who have made their way by various occupations among us, partly because they can live and work where an English race would fail; partly because of an industry, a sobriety, a frugality, a perseverance, an obedience to authority, which often put us to shame. These are the coloured races—some under our protection, some only reached by our commerce, some pressed into the service of cultivation of our lands—races emphatically weak in comparison with our own race; capable (as exploration has proved) of showing friendliness and of receiving civilisation, yet with all the changeableness and impulsiveness of the savage state. With all these races in different ways the rapid growth of Australia brings us in contact. What, I repeat, is the duty towards them, which God's Providence lays upon us? It can be answered in one word, "true humanity;" that is, the recognition of a real human brotherhood between us, and then on our side a kind of elder brotherhood of unselfish protection and help. Need I tell you that, as a matter of fact, it was Christianity which first recognised as a practical fact this brotherhood, because it revealed the One Father of all; because it taught the Gospel of one Saviour, who died for the whole world; because it recognised one Holy Spirit, inspiring the humanity of all, and impressing on men's hearts the three great moral convictions of Sin, and Righteousness, and Judgment? And each system, non-Christian or Anti-Christian, acknowledges this brother head of humanity as almost a common place. But this "humanity"—the higher law of self-forgetfulness and self-sacrifice—how hard a warfare has it to wage against the lower law of selfish struggle for existence, and survival of the strongest, which modern science reveals to us in the brute creation everywhere, and which extends to man's lower nature, ruling there with a most deliberate and conscious selfishness. Commercial and material interests, real or supposed—the passion for political aggrandisement, dominion, and power, the fierce and reckless delight in the exercise of superior force, and the intolerant passion for revenge in case of resistance—these things, and such as these, have fought and still fight only too powerfully against this humanity, which is the essence of all true civilisation. If it is—which God grant—to prevail, then the whole community, individually and collectively, by force of law and by the public opinion, which makes or mars the efficiency of law, must watch and strive to the utmost. Mainly, I suppose, the need is of firm and unhesitating protection of these weaker races against the tyranny and injustice of the strong. The aboriginal races have surely an especial claim upon us, in virtue of the very land which we occupy. It is, I believe, error or slander to hold that they cannot be raised, and to a certain extent civilised—that they cannot be employed in work as free servants and not slaves. The island races perhaps have the claim of an especial need of protection from the cruelties which make our blood run cold, and which have stirred them to a blood revenge at the cost of our noblest and holiest lives—for the traffic in labour, if it cannot be kept from becoming a virtual slave trade and a depopulator of islands, incapable of sparing the flower of their young men, ought to be abolished at all costs. The Chinese immigrants, I know not whether they so greatly need this protection; but in a less degree from prejudice, selfishness, contempt, I fear they have sometimes much to undergo. Wherever it is needed surely that protection should be given. To bear one another's burden, to give help from the strong to the infirmities of the weak, is indeed especially the law of Christ, but it is so because it is the law of true humanity. But, besides protection, may we not also plead for the law of kindliness and unselfishness? Nothing is, I suppose, more certain than that with perfect freedom all individuals, all races, will find their true level—that each will gradually occupy the place for which he is fitted—and that the commonest of all will react for good on every member of the community. But why is this? I answer, because the giving of that freedom, not grudgingly or jealously, but in free, genial kindliness, is an obedience to the law of humanity; it is the law of God. Not from calculation of expediency, but from a sense of duty should we plead for it. No doubt it may be that these immigrant races need stricter regulation, more like the government of their own countries, than we who have grown up under the education of freedom. When they need it they must have it, as much for their own sakes as for the sake of the whole community. My brethren, suffer me to urge upon you our duty as citizens in this matter. We strive and long for the growth of our Australian community to greatness. If history reads any lesson—if the Word of God has any meaning—both unquestionably teach us to shun the curse of unrighteous cruelty and bloodguiltiness. God p..don us if we have already in any respect drawn down that curse upon us! God teach us to atone for it by a higher and more generous future! But the solemn occasion of to-night brings before us our duty as members of the Church of Christ. That duty none can doubt or question. We believe that our Lord's manifestation on earth was for all races and all time; that the Cross and Resurrection, which we are now commemorating, with its salvation for sin and death, was absolutely universal; that the Gospel has its message for every child of man; that the grace of Christ can show its saving power under all conditions of life and progress. To make all nations His disciples is the clear duty of Christians as such, and in virtue of unequalled opportunity, it is the special duty of English Christians. To us that duty comes home in respect of all these races of which I have spoken to-night. The Board of Missions, to which our offerings are to be given to-night, recognise that duty as incumbent upon the whole of our Church in this land. Something, thank God, had been done for all. The Melanesian Mission in particular is one of the brightest spots in missionary enterprises. The support of the Chinese and Aboriginal Missions has been from the first a part of our work here. But, my brethren, I am bound to tell you that, so far as I can see, our Church has not yet risen to anything like the height of her duty and opportunity, to any proper conception of the obligation of missionary labour, as an integral part of the work of every Church, resorting for help and not for hindrance, on the strength of that Church at home. I trust that ere long the institution of a missionary Sunday will bring home this duty more fully to every congregation in this diocese of Sydney. And, perhaps it may be thought that the condition of Chinese thought and life, so far as we know them, brings out with some special clearness the crying need of the living religion of the Gospel for the true growth of humanity among the Chinese. The Chinese character, as you know, is full of industry, ingenuity, cheerful submission to authority, intelligence for labour and sacrifice, care for domestic life and happiness. The Chinese civilisation is the oldest in the world—wonderfully organised, wonderfully advanced in many points—strong enough to have endured many shocks of attack and conquest. But in spite of all this, the race has not, at least for centuries, been a dominant and progressive race; it cannot stand against European civilisation for a moment. The Chinese make good servants, but bad rulers of men. Is it mere coincidence, or is it something more than coincidence, that this race is markedly one which knows nothing of what we understand by a vital religion? Of the two native systems which prevail in the land, both are systems of conduct and morality—differing chiefly in the value of the one for order and culture, and of the other for primitive simplicity—neither bringing out the reality of a Divine Father, neither stimulating or satisfying the thirst for a living God. And the foreign system, which has naturalised itself in the country, what is it but a formal ignoring of the personality of God and man in Buddhism, which has been called the religion of despair? We, brethren, if we know anything of the quickening power of true Christianity in bringing out our true worship of God in Jesus Christ, giving us the grace of salvation, conquering the power of sin in us, giving us the inspiration of moral life, and teaching us the force of prayer—we, I say, shall never think that this is mere coincidence. We shall believe that the loving religion of Christ—at once a religion of humanity and a religion of the living God—is precisely the one thing which the Chinese most need as the secret of growth and life. It is to us strange and perplexing that so many millions of those whom God made, and for whom Christ died, should be still wandering in darkness and spiritual deadness. It is a shame to the Christianity of Europe that it has made so little impression on the heathenism of China. But what concerns us is to do our duty to these Chinese with whom God's Providence has brought us in contact—to rejoice in the good work of this night—to give aid, larger and freer aid, by contribution and sympathy and prayer to the mission of which it is the fruit.

BRITISH and FOREIGN BIBLE SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the Woollahra branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society was held last night in the school hall, Woollahra. Mr. J. R. Fairfax occupied the chair, and the attendance was much larger than had been the case on several previous occasions. A letter apologising for unavoidable absence was read from the Rev. Dr. Barry. After the proceedings had been formally commenced by singing and prayer,

The CHAIRMAN, before calling upon the secretary to read the report, &c., read a number of statistics from the society's last printed report indicative of the extensive ramifications of its labours and the immense sums of money with which it had to deal. He left these to speak for themselves; and, in passing, expressed his pleasure at again meeting the Rev. Mr. Upjohns, B.A., whom he had met at a similar meeting in London some time ago.

The Rev. S. BRYANT (for the secretary) read the report and statement of funds collected, as follows:—"The committee have little that is new or remarkable to report at the end of another year's operations in connection with the Woollahra branch of the New South Wales Auxiliary, as their duties hardly reach beyond a systematic collecting of subscriptions in aid of the parent society, and annually presenting their accounts and remitting the money available. During the year a total sum of £23 7s. 11d. was received, and that amount, less 6s. expenses, has been duly forwarded. This amount is less than last year's by fully £10, which is explained by the Paddington branch having been called into existence which has limited the area from which our subscriptions have been collected. There has been no falling off in the subscriptions from Woollahra, and with the respectable sum received by the Paddington branch, the amount collected in the district is a gratifying increase upon former years. Still, we are conscious that the interest in and support of this noble society are very far below its merits, and are not flattering to the residents of this large and wealthy suburb. Our income ought to be trebled at least, and we are confident that this could be done if a thorough and systematic canvass of the borough were made by a sufficient number of persons well informed and earnest in the good cause. We are compelled to repeat what has already become a monotonous feature in our reports, that our want is a large number of zealous collectors, and until that want is supplied we cannot hope for any considerable increase either in the general interest or in the amount of contributions. At present the collectors are all connected with one congregation, and that not the most numerous in the borough, so that we cannot ask for a further increase from that source. The catholic basis and character of the society requires that the honours and the labours be fairly distributed, and the committee renews its appeal to the ministers and members of all the Christian congregations within its boundaries to aid in their enterprise. The annual report of the parent society gladdens all who desire the coming of Christ's kingdom, since it shows that the liberality of Christians in many lands still increases, the operations of the society are still extending, and the results are increasingly gratifying. Indeed, so extensive, so enormous are the operations of the society that a superficial mind might suppose that the object for which it was founded, and has been so bountifully supported, was almost accomplished; but a deeper consideration of the world's wants, and the vast fields now open and hardly touched by Christian enterprise of any kind, will reveal a growing and emphatic demand for the multiplication and circulation of the Holy Scriptures in every land and every language. "The harvest truly is plenteous; but the labourers are few." We rejoice in the renewed zeal and increase of the New South Wales auxiliary, and of Australasia generally, which is chiefly due to God's blessing upon the untiring and fruitful labours of the society's agents. The annual meeting lately held in Sydney was an encouraging improvement upon the meeting of late years, and the admirable addresses delivered on that occasion cannot fail to awaken new interest throughout this land in the work and needs of the British and Foreign Bible Society. The collectors are to be particularly commended for their indefatigable, and sometimes unobserved, labours; and the best compliment to pay them at this time is to largely increase the staff of collectors, thereby lightening the burdens and stimulating the enthusiasm of those who have done so much for the good cause. In laying down their honourable and pleasant duties your committee desire to commend the society fervently to Him without whom nothing can prosper, and to the practical support of all who desire the spread of divine knowledge and purity in the earth.'"

The statement of funds collected referred to the collections from January, 1884, to January, 1885, and was as follows:—District 1, collected by Mr. J. G. Thompson, £4 2s.; district 2, collected by Mr. J. G. Thompson, £2 8s. 3d.; district 3, collected by Mr. Gillespie, 10s.; district 7, collected by Miss Armstrong, £5 13s. 6d.; district 9, collected by Mrs. Tisdale, £8 3s.; collection at annual meeting, £1 15s. 6d.; interest for 1882 and 1883, 15s. 8d.: total, £23 7s. 11d., less cost of advertising annual meeting, 6s.; amount remitted as per contribution, £23 1s. 11d.

Rev. W. G. LAWES briefly moved,—"That the foregoing report and statement be adopted, printed, and circulated."

Rev. Dr. GILCHRIST seconded the motion, and addressed the meeting at considerable length. The report he looked upon as encouraging in some respects, whilst it was discouraging in others. Alluding more particularly to the comparative smallness of the sums raised, he said that many persons were under an impression that the society was so flourishing as not to need their small donations. This he pointed out was erroneous, as might be seen by the work performed, and the many incidental calls demanding expenditure. At present the society was nothing compared with what it was expected to be in the future.

The motion was unanimously carried.

Rev. H. T. UPJOHNS moved,—"That this meeting rejoices in the continued prosperity and usefulness of the society, and desires to promote its objects by continued prayer and liberality;" and described the progress and condition of the society's work in Sweden and elsewhere.

Hon. ALEXANDER GORDON, M.L.C., seconded the motion, and forcibly urged the claims of the society.

The motion was carried unanimously.

Rev. K. C. CORNER moved, Rev. E. FOX THOMAS seconded, and it was resolved,—"That this meeting tender its thanks to the committee, with the hope that they will continue their services during the present year."

A collection was then taken up, and while this was being done Rev. Mr. Upjohns exhibited specimens of the society's latest achievements in cheap editions of the Scriptures in English and other languages.

On the motion of the Rev. S. BRYANT, seconded by the Rev. Mr. BURDETT, a cordial vote of thanks was accorded to the chairman, who, in acknowledging the vote, took occasion to express the pleasure he had derived when in Europe from an acquaintanceship with the late Rev. C. E. B. Reed, formerly secretary to the society, who lost his life whilst mountaineering.

The singing of the doxology and the benediction brought the proceedings to a close.

MINING INTELLIGENCE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MITCHELL (VIA RYDAL) WEDNESDAY.

Mining matters are in a prosperous condition here.

A report upon the coal seams discovered in the Milton and Ulladulla districts, near Jervis Bay, has recently been forwarded to the Hon. Minister for Mines by Mr. C. S. Wilkinson, the geological surveyor in charge. The site in question, it appears, is near the sources of the Clyde River, where the junction of the waters from several peat-bog swamps has eroded a precipitous ravine about 600 feet deep, at the bottom of which the coal seams crop out. There appear to be several layers of coal, one of which is kerosene shale, while the other is ordinary coal. The coal from this spot could be conveyed by a line of railway, 26 miles to the large shipping port of Jervis Bay, or else by a shorter route to the harbour of Ulladulla. These seams were first discovered about 16 months ago. The whole of these lands have been reserved, and are available for leasing only on the basis of the royalty provided by the new Land Act.

Mr. W. H. J. Slee has just reported on the Braidwood goldfields. He states that rich and important discoveries of gold have been found at Settlers' Flat, on the Little River, from which 16 tons of quartz gave 39oz. of gold, which was of high quality, worth £3 19s. 6d per oz. At Major's Creek mining was somewhat dull, owing to the scarcity of water for sluicing purposes. The Araluen Valley is livelier in mining matters than it has been for the past five years, and through the agency of tail races poorer ground than that formerly worked is now made to pay.

The mining manager of the Great Extended Gold-mining Company, Limited, Forest Reefs, New South Wales, under date 4th instant wires as follows:—"We cleaned up to-day and obtained 43oz. 6dwt. of retorted gold from 190 tons dirt crushed. During the fortnight we passed through the pyrites lode twice in the drive, and also had it in the stopes. I have no doubt that the pyrites therefrom, mixed with the dirt, was in a great measure the cause of the poorness of the return. The works are now clear of the lode, and I think the next yield will be better. The lead is heading south-west, and is 35 feet wide; 63 feet were stoped out, and the leading drive was extended the same distance; total distance from face of drive to shaft, 1416 feet."

At Leeuwarden, Holland, interesting military experiments have been made with a skating corps of Frieslanders. They were directed to proceed in campaigning accoutrements to a point supposed to be threatened by an invading enemy. The manœuvre, which recalls some famous feats of the Dutch against the forces of the Duke of Alva, lasted three hours, and was perfectly successful.

COMMERCIAL.

PRODUCE MARKET.—WEDNESDAY.

The sales at Darling Harbour, this morning, were well attended, especially the forage market. Good supplies of forage and wood were offered. The forage market exhibited a decided improvement on previous sales, with brisk competition and demand; in consequence, hay and chaff were firmer. Straw was unaltered. The wood market remains dull, owing to the late heavy arrivals and to buyers being amply supplied. On the wharfs there was a moderate supply forward, consisting of Northern and Southern rivers consignments. Lucerne hay was dearer. Business was a little more active than of late, and buyers purchased with a little more freedom. Operations were confined to hay, maize, potatoes, onions, and dairy produce. At Darling Harbour sales the following prices were realised:—

Wood.—Large market. Sluggish sales at per ton: Billet wood, 9s. to 12s. 6d.; bundle, 10s. to 16s.; foot, 12s. to 16s.; bakers', 11s. to 12s. 6d.; bark, 6s. to 7s. 6d.

Hay.—Good supplies. Demand improved. Market firmer. Competition active for prime descriptions of oaten hay in bales and bundles, and lucerne in truss. Oaten in bundles, 3s. to 5s. 2d. per cwt.; extra prime lots, 5s. 6d to 5s. 7d.; bales, 3s. 9d. to 5s. 7d.; truss, 3s. 10d. to 4s. 2d.; lucerne, in truss, 4s. to 5s. 2d.; wheaten, in bundles, 2s. 11d. to 3s. 3d.; oaten and wheaten, in bundles, 3s. 5d. to 4s. 8d.; bales, 4s. 1d.; oaten hay and straw, in bundles, 4s. 3d.

Straw.—Fair consignments forward. Market value unchanged. Fair competition. Clean, in bundles, 2s. 8d. to 2s. 9d. per cwt.; derrick-pressed, 2s. 9d.

Pumpkins.—Fair competition at 10d. to 3s. 2d. per dozen; melons, 1s. 10d. On the wharfs the following are the wholesale quotations:—

Maize.—No fresh shipments; stocks working off steadily at 3s. to 3s. 1d. per bushel.

Oats.—No change under this head. Market depressed, owing to stocks being in excess of requirements. Quiet sales of feed up to 2s. 6d. per bushel. Little or no inquiry for seed.

Barley.—Little or no business doing under this head. Nominal value of Cape, 3s. per bushel.

Bran.—Market well supplied by late arrivals. Stocks moving off up to 10½d. per bushel.

Pollard.—Steady request at 11d. to 11½d. per bushel.

Hay.—Small additions to stocks forward from the Hunter River this morning. Improved demand. Wharfs fairly supplied. Market firmer. Prime lucerne, £4 10s. to £4 15s. per ton; other qualities, from £3 5s. to £1 5s.

Chaff.—No fresh shipment. Stocks ample. Quiet sale of Victorian up to £4 10s. per ton.

Onions.—Market fairly supplied by late arrivals. Steady sales of Victorian at £3 per ton.

Potatoes.—Another Victorian shipment of 2361 bags to hand last night, with the arrivals of previous days, keeps stocks equal to requirements. Warrnambool selling at £2 10s. to £2 15s. per ton. New Zealand quoted at £3.

Butter.—Stocks replenished this morning from Southern ports. Brisk sales of Illawarra at 1s. 6d. per lb. Intercolonial packed quoted at 1s. to 1s. 4d.

Cheese.—800 from Southern ports yesterday. Stocks of colonial moving off at 5d. to 7d. per lb. Little or no inquiry for other descriptions.

Bacon.—Fair supplies. Steady request for hand-cured Southern up to 11d per lb.; machine-cured to 9d; heavy and rough, from 6d. Hams, 10d. to 1s.

PASTORAL INTELLIGENCE.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ALBURY, WEDNESDAY.

Moderately warm and dry weather, alternating with occasional showers, has prevailed during the week, and in the immediate neighbourhood of Albury the pastures have made fair growth, and the general outlook is encouraging for graziers. In the western portion of the district, however, the country is beginning to look dry, and more rain is needed both for graziers and farmers, as the feed is rapidly drying up and ground is too hard to be ploughed with advantage. The water supply in some parts is also running low, and a good heavy downpour would therefore be most acceptable. A report has reached the inspector of stock to the effect that rabbits had been seen at Goombargana, several miles from the nearest spot where the pest had been previously known to exist, and an inspection of the locality fully confirms this information. Cattle and sheep remain generally in fair condition, and no disease prevails to any important extent.

The following are the principal stock movements in this district:—800 mixed sheep, from Victoria, for Riverina, Mr. A. Sutherland owner; 1000 weaners, from Howlong, for Yambla, Mr. Philip Gell owner; 450 merino ewes, from Albury, for Mountain Creek, Mr. J. Dankton owner; 7200 merino ewes, from Koolangia, Victoria, for North Yanko, Messrs. H. and C. Douglas owners; 13,100 merino ewes and 200 rams, from Victoria, for Warrego, Queensland, Messrs. Ettershank and Co. owners; 1509 mixed merino sheep, from Victoria, for Yanco Creek, Urana, Mr. A. M'Phee owner; 1446 mixed merino sheep, from Victoria, for Yanco Creek, Mr. J. Sparks owner; 909 merino ewes, from Victoria, for Yanco Creek, Mr. J. Flynn owner; 2500 merino wethers, from Burra, for Goonambil, Hon. W. Wilson owner.

COONAMBLE PASTORAL AND AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATION'S SHOW.

COONAMBLE, WEDNESDAY.

The second show in connection with the Coonamble Pastoral and Agricultural Association took place to-day. The weather was fine, and the attendance fair, numbering about 400 people, including many country residents. The exhibits of sheep were limited, owing to the show being held at the wrong season of the year. The display of horses was very poor, especially in draught stock and ladies' and gentlemen's hackneys. The show of cattle was moderately good, including a few Durhams among the exhibits. The prize for the best blood horse was taken by Mr. Saunders, and for the best blood mare by Mr. G. D. Lane. A two-year-old draught colt, shown by Mr. A. Tobin, of Wingadee, was considered by the judges to be an exceptionally fine animal. Mr. Mark Herrmann took first prize for both best brood mare and best pair of plough horses. The first prize for best gentleman's hackney was awarded to Mr. Charles Bloodsworth, and the second to Mr. J. Lorimer. Miss Piper took first prize for ladies' hackney, and Miss Manuse second. There were nine entries in each of the last two classes, the exhibits being exceptionally good. Mr. Crook took first prize for best single buggy horse, and the best pair of buggy horses were shown by Mr. H. P. Blake. Mr. Blake also took first prize for the best spring-cart horse. The chief cattle prizes were taken by Mr. Donald Fletcher and Mr. W. Skuthorpe. Mr. Mark Herrmann also exhibited some fair cows. For pigs the two principal prizes were awarded to Mr. David M'Cullough. Mr. Henry Smith of Mudgee, and Mr. Macuire, sen., of Coonabarabran, did nearly all the stock judging.

From Messrs. Moss and Co.'s steamship circular, dated Liverpool, February 24, the following interesting items are taken:—"For the third time in succession we are compelled to speak unfavourably of the prospects of steam shipping, but on this occasion we are justified in expressing an opinion, that if not in the immediate future, certainly within a year, there is all reasonable probability of a considerable improvement. The depression has had the effect of considerably reducing the output of new tonnage; the total tonnage launched during 1884 was 750,839 tons, as against 1,116,555 in 1883. The most marked declension is at the north-east shipbuilding ports, which show a decrease of over 300,000 tons; the Wear district having turned out 112,700 tons less than in 1883; the Tyne, 92,350 tons less; and the Tees, 89,300 tons less. The Clyde shows a decrease of nearly 119,000 tons from 1883, but as this is divided between some 50 firms the depression, though severe, has not been felt as severely as on the north-east coast. The output would not have reached anything like its present total had it not been for contracts made in 1883, which builders had in hand at the commencement of last year; but we expect that the output for 1885 will show a considerable decrease, as scarcely any steamers are building except for special purposes. Of the tonnage lying idle some is so hopelessly in debt to banks and others that it will never be sailed again by the present managing owners. The ownery, being held in sixty-fourths, prevents sales, because the numerous shareholders are seldom in one mind as to what they will accept, and thus chances of selling are lost; this we know has happened more than once, and unless creditors step in and call in the aid of the Court, a large amount of property will still remain unproductive. Freights cannot be said to have improved, and owners find it more and more difficult to keep vessels employed in any trade yielding a profit; there is, however, the probability that the Government will require to keep many thousands of tons of shipping employed in conveying military stores, railway materials, &c., for the service of our armies in Egypt and the Soudan, probably, for fully 12 months. Freights, it is to be hoped, will rise from their long depression, and shipowners get that fair and reasonable interest for their property, that they may justly expect. Government have already taken up some 80,000 tons of steamers, mostly consisting of the pick of the vessels belonging to our large shipping companies, at a rate of 17s. 6d. per ton G.F. and under. This rate as compared with the cost of transport during the Egyptian war, 1882, is fully 5s. less than the average on that occasion; for second-class steamers and cargo vessels, very much lower rates have been accepted, some as low as 10s. 6d. per ton on G.F. Upwards of 300 steamers have been placed at the service of the Admiralty, and the shipowner is envied whose vessels have been selected. Builders have lately accepted very reduced prices to enable them to keep their yards going, several cargo vessels, carrying 3000 tons on moderate draft, have been contracted for at £8 to £8 5s. per ton on their dead weight capacity, and a fair sprinkling of other sizes at proportionate rates, and still an anxiety is shown to secure orders—the total number contracted for are comparatively few, and absence of orders from the regular lines show that they, as well as their humbler neighbours, have over-built themselves. The vessels thrown on builders' hands by failures are sensibly reduced in number, and as builders now exercise marked caution in their dealings, and will only give extended terms to respectable firms, a sounder business may be expected in the future. Triple expansion engines are gaining rapidly in favour, the saving of fuel has been satisfactorily proved, and engineers assert the wear and tear of boilers and engines will not be appreciably increased; a working pressure of 150 to 170 lb. is ordinarily used with them. Iron and steel sailing ships of large tonnage are still favourably thought of, and several orders have been placed; £9 10s. to £10 5s. We trust this class of shipping property will not be overbuilt."

A collision took place yesterday forenoon between the ketch Vision and Messrs. Howard Smith and Sons' steamship Buninyong, in Darling Harbour, resulting in the Vision sinking. The ketch, it appears, was anchored and the Buninyong was moving away from the company's wharf to proceed to Newcastle when the accident occurred. The Buninyong was not injured, and continued her voyage.

The E. and A. Company's steamship Catterthun, from Melbourne via Newcastle, arrived yesterday afternoon, and was berthed at the Company's jetty, Smith's wharf. She leaves for Hongkong on Saturday, 18th instant, at noon.

At a special general meeting of Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, presided over by Mr. J. R. Street, this afternoon, the resolutions adopted at a previous meeting, authorising the directors to pay off the existing mortgage, to acquire additional property, and to borrow as they may require, were unanimously confirmed.

In the Import markets to-day business was decidedly quiet. The races drew many from the city, whilst others were chiefly engaged in their mail correspondence. The holiday aspect of the position caused a postponement of the grocery sale; and the weekly timber auction for a like reason was put off until Friday afternoon. From inquiries to-day, we learn that but few insurers yet think it worth while to pay the extra premium required to secure their property against the risks of war. That may be taken as an expression of the general view that hostilities will be averted. The smallness of the rate fixed indeed implies that in England war is only regarded as a remote contingency. Still it might be said that in a war with a Power like Russia the rate could hardly be expected to be a very heavy one; at all events, until it is shown that she had been successful in getting abroad a fleet of cruisers. In such a case only could values of goods be materially affected. Of course, in regard to rope, or other articles on which we are dependent to some extent on Russia for supplies, there would, no doubt, be an advance, as was indeed the case in the last Russian war. There was a moderately good trade in flour, the market being firm at late rates. The reported conclusion of peace between France and China has not checked the inquiry for tea, and we hear of the quittance of 450 half-chests of medium quality at from 47s. 6d. to 52s. 6d.; with some further business pending. At the moment we do not hear of much doing in sugar, and late quotations are maintained. In oilman's stores, sales of Whybrow's salad oil are mentioned—half-pints at 5s. 3d., pints at 9s. 3d., and quarts at 17s. 6d. Trade business was done at the following prices:—Keen's D. S. F., quarters, 4s. 10½d., halves at 8s. 6d., and 1lb.'s at 17s. The demand for brewers' goods continues very light. In liquors a good all-round trade is noted in spirits, though no sales of moment transpired, and no business which indicates change in values. We do not hear of anything of importance done in metals. I.C. coke tin plates scarcely so dear on the spot; more than 18s. cannot be quoted. For slates, more particularly of 20 x 10's, there is a brisk demand, with a firm market, owing to the smallness of stocks. In oils there is not much to notice. China has a firmer tendency, and 3s. 6d. to 3s. 7d. is required. Castor worth 3s. In drugs, we hear of business in 70 per cent. caustic soda at £14. Jute goods are dull of sale; woolpacks moving off at 2s. for small lots of 11½lb.

At the wool sales held to-day by Messrs. Mort and Co., Limited, there was a fair demand at prices much the same as recently quoted, although latest English advices are not reassuring. Grease brought from 6d. to 8¼d., scoured fleece 17d. to 18½d., scoured skin wool 14d. to 16½d., scoured locks and pieces 6½d. to 14½d., and washed fleece 10d. to 14½d. per lb. Privately and at auction 354 bales were sold, the principal lots being as follows:—B&D over Walcha, 11 bales scoured at 18½d. for firsts, 17½d. for seconds, and 14½d. for thirds; C. Michell over Bell's Mountains, 7 greasy crossbred at 7½d.; GJ, 8 grease at 7¾d.; MM over New England, 19 scoured locks at 9½d.; WW over 4, 6 fleece at 11½d.; KM, 7 fleece at 11½d.; JK over S, 7 grease at 7½d.; JV over New England, 9 grease at 8½d., WM over New England, 9 scoured at 17½d.; AB, 9 fleece at 12½d.; AS over J, 10 fleece at 12½d.; T over ‿ over New England, 18 fleece at 14½d.; F over JC, &c., 59 fleece at 11½d.; SH over C, 27 fleece at 11½d.; EH over Peak, 22 fleece at 11½d.; TT over New England, 14 grease at 8½d. Sheepskins sold freely at late rates, best bringing 6¼ per lb.; medium, 5d. to 6d.; short, 8½d. to 4½d., and pelts down to 2½d. per lb.

Mr. John Bridge reports having held a sale of wool and sheepskins to-day. There was a fair attendance of buyers, but competition was dull—a fact attributed to the easier tone of the London market. Sheepskins also were easier, especially crossbred skins, which called forth little competition. Well cared-for sound-pelted skins are in demand on shipping account, but values show a decline on late rates. Best woolled skins sold at 6d. to 6½d.; medium, 4½d. to 5½d.; short-woolled, 8½d. to 4½d.; pelts, 1½d. to 3d.

The manager of the Sunny Corner Silver-mining Company reports the shipment of a parcel of refined silver (20,042oz.), valued at £4760, by the Pekin, for London. This makes a total of 140,794oz. refined silver, valued at 4s. 9d. per oz.—£33,439, shipped to London by this company since the commencement of the year.

The American three-masted schooner R. M. Hayward arrived this evening from New York, with a general cargo.

Respecting copper we extract the following from the San Francisco Commercial Herald of February 12:—

"The market for copper ores in San Francisco has been downwards all the past year, leaving no profits to either miners or shippers. Consequently, but small quantities have been shipped in the past few months, as prices have ruled so low that ordinary ore did not pay for mining and transportation. But few copper mines in California and Nevada are now producing. The San Francisco Copper Company, at Spenceville, Nevada county, have hoisted about 8000 tons ore, out of which they have produced about 320 tons copper cement, and by sheer economy, good management, and avoidance of dead work, have about paid expenses. The other copper mines in California and Nevada are doing very little, owing to low prices. In Arizona the Copper Queen has produced in bar copper equal to 3750 tons fine; the old Dominion and Globe, over 3000 tons, the United Verdi about 2400; the Longfellow, about 2000; and Detroit, nearly 1800 tons; while other mines, as Mathilde, &c., will make up a total production in Arizona of 13.000 to 14.000 tons fine copper. Montana productions cannot be estimated at less than 18,000 to 20,000 tons, and Lake Superior region at about 35,000 tons refined; so that we may count on a production for the whole United States somewhere near 70,000 tons for 1884, which shows a vast increase over 1879, when the production was about 21,000 tons. This increased output has necessitated heavy exports of nearly 40,000 tons, which, with larger quantities arriving from Spain, Chile, &c., have weighed heavily on the English market, and finally broke prices there to a value hitherto unknown, say £47 2s. 6d. per ton for Chile bar copper against the previously lowest price for 30 years of £53 12s. 6d. in August, 1879. At present the price here in America is entirely governed by the English market, as the latest contracts made by Lake producers with their consumers in the United States are based on Chile bar quotations in England—10¼ c. per lb. for Lake refined when Chile bars are £48 and under, rising ¼ c. per lb. for each £1 ton advance, until £52 is equal to the parity of 11¼ c. lb., and prices since December have varied in New York proportionately with English quotations, and ores in San Francisco vary likewise. Over-production has thus played havoc with copper-mining, but we think prices have seen their lowest point. Already many small mines have been obliged to shut down, and United Verdi, Old Dominion, and Globe have also ceased producing temporarily, and we expect to hear of Longfellow and Detroit stopping any time, as private advices show they cannot work profitably at present values. Stocks in England are not larger than they were at this time last year, as lower values have increased deliveries, and the consumption of the metal is very much heavier than before for many obvious reasons. In Swansea they have tried an experiment of sheeting the iron steamer called Morna with copper by means of an attachment of melted rubber. Public attention is anxiously watching the result of this experiment, and if the Morna returns from her voyage with copper-plates in good condition, and no injury to the iron hull, the future consumption will be largely increased. Copper also is being more extensively used for roofing purposes, and it is now proposed that all telegraph wires, especially those placed underground, shall be made of this superior metal."

The Customs duties received to-day were as follows:—

Spirits, £2776 13s. 2d.; wine (still), £140 10s.; ditto (sparkling), £24 6s.; ale porter and beer (in wood), £264 7s. 6d.; ditto (in bottles), £111 18s. 9d.; tobacco and snuff, £362 8s.; tobacco (for manufacturing purposes only), £489 6s.; cigars, £481 13s.; cigarettes, £17 16s. 3d.; tea, £450 7s. 9d.; coffee, £2 11s.; sugar (refined), £2 13s. 4d.; ditto (unrefined), £501 18s. 9d.; opium, £497 5s.; rice, £109 1s. 9d.; dried fruits, £42 18s.; nuts, £1; hops, £69 16s. 6d.; specific duty, £1025 3s. 8d.; bonded warehouses, 42 Vic. The Sydney Morning Herald.

THURSDAY, APRIL 9, 1885.

In yesterday's issue we published an explanation of the failure of the great Torpedo on Monday, but the failure was one of some moment notwithstanding. The mischance was not the less serious for the fact that it was not the first time that it occurred. Much the same disappointment that happened this year happened last year. This possibly afforded some relief to the officers to whom the experiments of Monday were trusted, but it will have given none to the public. The fact that the failure of last year has been repeated this year will have created the impression that about at least one of our lines of defence there is something that wants mending. It does not appear that it is the corps that is to blame. The defect apparently lies in the machinery by which the torpedoes are reached, or in the torpedoes themselves. The officers of the corps are clearly in a position to give a satisfactory explanation of the failure, but in the interests of the public steps should be taken to prevent a repetition of the misfortune. Torpedoes that will not explode are not only useless but mischievous. It is better to have no guns than guns that will not go off, and a gun that will not go off is about as valuable as a torpedo that will not act. Both cost money which might be spent to some useful purpose, and what is of more consequence they raise false hopes, and, in times like the present especially, such hopes ought not to be created. The question which the country has been asking, and which it has a right to ask, is,—What would be the value of our defences in the event of our being visited by an enemy? Is it reasonable to conclude that we could offer a resistance that would be equal to any probable attack? It is almost needless to say that a defence force which does less than that is not worth having. In any department of human life the thing that does not accomplish its purpose is dear at any price; but if this is true in regard to other things, it is specially true in the matter of defences. If we decide on defending the harbour at all, we should lay ourselves out to defend it effectually. We may not do everything, but what we do ought to be well done. Our every line of defence should be satisfactory so far as it goes.

Even if defects were tolerated elsewhere, we ought to be sure that everything is right in connection with the Torpedo Corps. At present, so far as the colony is concerned, the corps supplies the first line of defence, and to a much larger extent than either the infantry or the artillery the corps is supposed to be able to call the resources of science to its aid. If our system of defence is to be worth anything, we must be able to rely on our torpedoes. If these fail, a most important part of our defence fails. The success of a body of infantry must largely depend on numbers; but with a proper supply of torpedoes a small community may be equal to a large one. The impression has been that the dangers of torpedo warfare have been over-estimated, and that in actual conflict the old projectiles would, after all, prove the most effective. Ten years ago the belief was that nothing could be found to resist torpedoes, but some of the experiences of the Russo-Turkish war considerably modified this belief. It was confessed that the torpedo was a deadly instrument, but more than one way was discovered of rendering it harmless. It was pointed out that if nothing else could be employed against the torpedo, one torpedo could be employed against another. Mines could be destroyed by counter-mines. And if the mine-torpedo could be rendered harmless by a counter-mine, it was pointed out that injury from the Whitehead torpedo could be avoided by illumination, by flotillas of gunboats, or by the covering of the hulls of vessels with flexible rope. Up to the present the British Admiralty has not shown an inclination to trust very implicitly to torpedoes. In spite of changes of opinion elsewhere, the Admiralty has been keeping up its faith in ironclads. The torpedo boat is mainly confined to two classes, and towards the close of last year it was pointed out that deducting 53 second-class boats, two first-class boats at Hongkong, two at Malta, and two at Gibraltar, there were only 13 torpedo vessels which "would be able to dispose of the most formidable ships in the services of this or any other country." Of late, however, the British authorities have been attaching increased importance to the torpedo branch of naval warfare.

Nor is it to the sowing of rivers and harbours with these instruments of destruction that the chief interest attaches. In any complete system of defence the spar or the Whitehead should supplement the mine torpedo. If proof were wanted of the indispensableness of this mode of defence it might be found in the records of the Franco-Chinese war, now happily brought to a close. "The telegrams from China," wrote an English contemporary the other day, "will call attention to the enormous importance of a branch of naval defence which England has almost neglected. The first naval battle of the Franco-Chinese war has terminated in a disastrous defeat of the Chinese, and why? Not because the French had ironclads, but because they had torpedo boats. Two of these small mosquitoes of the sea, attached to the French admiral's flagship, manned probably by half a dozen men, and costing a couple of thousand pounds, blew up the Chinese frigate Yuguen, of twenty-six guns, carrying 600 men, and the corvette Tcheng-King, of seven guns and 150 men. The French only lost one man. These Chinese men-of-war were not ironclads, it is true, but against torpedo attack the finest ironclad in our service is as helpless, even if she were armoured from stem to stern, as the unfortunate Yuquen and Tcheng-King."

The value of torpedoes, as our contemporary points out, is that they are not only destructive, but cheap. The backbone of the torpedo question, it has been said, is cheap defence. The theory is that any craft can carry a torpedo. The theory might prove a dangerous one, for although any boat might be able to carry a torpedo it is only in swift boats that torpedoes could be used to much purpose against fast cruisers for example. A torpedo boat, equal to a speed of eight knots, would not be able to inflict much damage on an ironclad that was equal to a speed of sixteen knots. Circumstances might arise under which any tug or steam launch might carry a torpedo to advantage. Still, for torpedoes there should be torpedo boats. A number of such boats could be purchased for less than a single fast cruiser would. "For the price of one first-class ironclad," remarks Mr. Donaldson, "fifty first-class torpedo boats of the latest type, or something like one hundred and fifty second-class boats, could be sent into action." The largest nations are obliged to content themselves with a limited number of ironclads, but the smallest can secure an ample supply of torpedo boats. For a few pounds we may lay in a stock of spar torpedoes, and a mere handful of trained men would be sufficient to make the best use of them. It will probably turn out that the expansion, as well as the improvement, of the torpedo branch of our defence system is a part of the scheme which will be recommended to the Government, and if so it is a part of it which should receive their best and earliest consideration. The Victorian defence system is ahead of ours in this, as we fear it is in other particulars, and the dangers which threaten us should move our authorities to a little healthy emulation. If there were no other reason for some vigorous action one might be found in the incident of Monday.

We are told by telegraph that the joint Anglo-German Commission to inquire into the Fiji land claims has concluded its labours, and that Mr. Thurston and Dr. Krauel do not very much differ in the conclusions they have arrived at. It has always appeared to us a curious thing that these two gentlemen should have been set to go through the form of making an inquiry, seeing that neither of them had anything to learn in the matter, and that each of them had officially expressed his opinions at large. Mr. Thurston, as an old resident of Fiji, and as a member of the Government for many years, has known the history of these German claims from the very first, and has written on them repeatedly. Dr. Krauel's knowledge has been more recent; but, as Consul-General in Sydney, he has been the medium of forwarding the German complaints, and has expressed his own opinion. To get these two gentlemen, so committed in the expression of their views, to travel to London and form a commission of inquiry seems a droll arrangement. Had they merely been summoned to give evidence before a new and impartial board of inquiry they would have been in the right place, but to employ them in a deliberative and judicial capacity was to some extent to ask them to report upon themselves. However, we are told that they have come very nearly to a common opinion in the matter, and if so, one or other of them must have considerably modified his views.

We have not yet heard whether the attention of this Commission has been specially drawn to the fact mentioned in our Fiji correspondent's last letter, viz., that Mr. Sahl, who is the principal complainant, and who claims damages to the amount of about £80,000, is really a naturalised Englishman. We quoted a short time ago a statement made by Prince Bismarck in the Reichstag to the effect that Germans who had expatriated themselves were no longer any concern of his; but in this matter of the Fiji land claims, he appears to have earnestly set himself to work to back up the claims of a naturalised Englishman. According to our Fiji correspondent, Mr. Sahl claims that his naturalisation in Fiji was only for twelve months, and that it lapsed by reason of absence. It is true that he was naturalised in Sydney, where also he took the oath of allegiance—we believe in 1870; but then it is contended that this naturalisation only holds good for the province in which it has been effected. On this showing Mr. Sahl claims to be an Englishman in Sydney and a German in Fiji, and that he can get the benefit of either flag as circumstances may make it convenient. It certainly does seem rather hard that a Sydney Englishman should be able to set the German Chancellor upon the English Government, and make him worry that Government for ten years about land purchases which the Fiji Land Commissioner regards as too dubious to entertain.

But whatever may be the financial result to Mr. Sahl of getting Bismarck to act as his broker, the other results of the Fiji Land Commission are now past recalling. We have been told repeatedly that it was the action of the Land Commission with respect to German claims that stimulated German annexation in the South Seas. If we had foreseen that such results would accrue from the labours of the gentlemen who were sitting at Levuka, we should have paid a little more attention to what they were doing. Those who administer the affairs of a Crown colony of a severe type may be quite unconsciously to themselves determining the affairs of the larger self-governing colonies. We little thought when Sir Arthur Gordon was raising the question of tribal title in Levuka, that he was depriving Australia of the New Britain Archipelago and part of New Guinea; and yet that is what he was really doing.

The discussion on the Recidiviste Bill with the French Government has been concluded for the present, and it rests entirely with that Government whether it is to be resumed. So far as the bill itself is concerned, little or nothing has been done to allay the just anxieties of the Australian colonies. Indeed, so far as French public opinion is concerned, it is very doubtful whether those anxieties have been considered just. Even so respectable a publication as the Revue des Deux Mondes assures its French readers that Australians never had any other but a money objection to convicts, and that all they objected to was having to pay for the maintenance of English villains. It was a question of money, says the writer, and nothing else; as indeed, he adds, all English questions are. We have been at the pains to inform the French Government fully of the number of French convicts that have escaped to Australia from New Caledonia, and of the number that have been imprisoned here for committing fresh crimes. We have furnished abundant evidence to a friendly Government that the evil of which we complain is not imaginary, and we have shown that the proposed enormous increase of transportation to New Caledonia, and of criminals of the very worst kind, must inevitably prove a very serious evil. We made these representations while there was time to avert the evil, and we have made them in a way which gives no just ground for complaint. We had further pointed out that up to the present time transportation to New Caledonia has not been a success, that it has failed to promote bona-fide colonisation, and that there are no results to show of a reformatory character. The French authorities in New Caledonia itself have abundantly sustained these representations. It has been officially shown that there is no sufficient land available for settlement, and that there is no public or private employment to absorb the new labour, and, thirdly, that in the class of convicts sent out there is no disposition to labour; and nothing can be worse than for criminals to live idly on the bounty of the Government. The only other alternative is to keep the prisoners securely confined, and to subject them to forced labour on some public work; but that might as well be done in France, and could be done twenty per cent. cheaper.

As the matter stands now, the French Government is at liberty to send its convicts to whichever colony it may approve of, and, for anything we know to the contrary, it may decide on sending a very large number of the very worst to New Caledonia, and to avoid the expense of keeping them there may give them a degree of liberty which will open the door to their escape. This state of things compels us to a position of perpetual vigilance—a very unpleasant position, but one that is forced upon us.

Pawnbrokers and others interested in the ownership of stolen property illegally pledged will mark the action of a District Court Judge in a case tried the other day. Formerly the person from whom the property had been taken claimed it as a matter of course on conviction of the thief, though he had pawned it. But this act of pawning even a stolen article creates a show of equitable ownership in the thing, though not a legal one; or at least an equitable lien upon it is set up. After a conviction of a thief, therefore, who ought to own the property? The Judge says previously the Act made an order for restitution compulsory, but under the Act now bearing on such cases he has a discretionary power. It may sometimes give him trouble to say for whose benefit this discretionary power is to be exercised. It is a hardship upon a pawnbroker to lose his money upon goods taken in the ordinary course of trade, and it is not reasonable that, as a matter of course, he should lose everything, except upon the common ground that he is in one sense a purchaser, and should beware. His liability to lose what he has lent is always fairly before him, and the present state of the law should encourage him to do business with care. But it is hard also upon the owner, or upon the person from whose possession the property was taken. The Judge may now consider whether these persons used reasonable care over their property. It is a common thing to see goods exposed at shop doors and on street pavements offering great temptations to distressed or needy persons. If such goods are stolen, and afterwards pawned, there is good reason why a Judge should consider whether he will restore them before the lien upon them has been paid. All these reasons, which undoubtedly operated with the Legislature, are certain also to weigh with Judges. The thing specially to be noted now is that effect is being given to the change in the law.

The report that peace has been concluded between France and China will bring relief to many minds, and solid satisfaction should it be confirmed. There were great rejoicings when Langson was occupied by the French, and it was confidently asserted that thenceforth in Tonquin, and in her dealings with China, France could do exactly as she liked. Then came the news that in the presence of overwhelming numbers of Chinese troops Langson had been evacuated, and the French general in command had been obliged, amidst much risk, to retreat. As the writers in French papers who have commented on affairs in the Soudan have probably perceived, it is not only there that leaders of expeditions may have to change their plans under severe pressure. The change at Langson has brought about changes in Paris, and by a curious coincidence, while the Ferry Ministry has been unseated through the political reaction produced by the military defeat, the formation of the Brisson Ministry has been accompanied by a peace concluded through the kind offices of a British official. The Chamber was willing a short time back to support the Government in a more vigorous prosecution of the war. It might have been expected that the reverse at Langson would have strengthened that feeling; but the indications point the other way. If, as is said, Captain Fournier's treaty of last year is the basis of the new peace, without any indemnity from China, that is practically an admission that France has been in the wrong from the time when hostilities were renewed. They were renewed on the plea of Chinese treachery and bad faith, in compensation for which an immense indemnity was demanded. The abandonment of that claim is a confession of misunderstanding, unless an equivalent has been stipulated for in some other way. It is to be observed that the new Ministry includes M. Freycinet as Minister for Foreign Affairs. It was M. Freycinet who held France aloof from action at Alexandria, and lost power in consequence of his inaction. General Campenon is Minister of War. It was General Campenon who quitted the Ferry Ministry because he was opposed to the undue weakening of the power of France in Europe by large military enterprises abroad, and who further objected to the tendency of M. Ferry's Germanising policy to bring France under the influence of Prince Bismarck. The Chinese sudden display of force at Langson has produced far-reaching effects, effects that the "braves" and their leaders hardly contemplated.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

No further progress appears to have been made towards a settlement of the Afghan frontier difficulty. It is reported, however, that the Earl of Rosebery has requested Prince Bismarck to mediate between England and Russia. The Standard views the present aspect of affairs in a serious light, and regards the situation as critical. According to a telegram from Suakim, it is reported that Tamai has been deserted and burned by the enemy.

The Pacific Mail steamship Zealandia, with the English mails via San Francisco, entered the Heads at half-past 2 o'clock this morning.

Some doubt appears to be entertained as to whether it will be possible for the Ministers whose names have been mentioned to visit the Clarence and Richmond districts. It was intended that the party, consisting of Mr. Dalley, Mr. Dibbs, and Mr. Wright, should leave Sydney on Friday or Saturday next, and that the party should be entertained at Grafton on Tuesday evening, cross to the Richmond, and be entertained there on Thursday, leave on Friday morning, and get back to Sydney on Monday. We believe it is not yet settled whether this plan will be carried out. Some doubt appears also to exist as to whether two of the Ministers named can accompany the party.

The action Peele v. Borrodaile was continued in the Banco Court yesterday, and is still unfinished. Plaintiff's case, however, was closed, and evidence was being called in reply when the Court adjourned.

The Attorney-General has declined to file bills in the following cases:—Thomas Jobson, committed by the Goulburn bench of magistrates on the 2nd instant for sheepstealing; and Patrick Heffernan, committed by the Bathurst Bench, on the 1st instant, on a charge of assault and robbery.

The secretary to the New South Wales Commission for the Calcutta Exhibition (Mr. Cumming) has just received the silver medals for the New South Wales exhibitors, and they will be issued without delay. They are 95 in number, are similar in design and size to the bronze ones recently forwarded to exhibitors, and are enclosed in handsome cases. The president of the commission (Sir Patrick Jennings) has decided that copies of the official Record of the New South Wales Commission shall be given to each New South Wales exhibitor. These copies will be ready probably in the course of another week, and they will then be sent from the office of the commission to those entitled to receive them. As this publication, in the official reports which it comprises (including those of the President and Mr. Franklin, the Executive Commissioner), deals with matters of interest to Anglo-Indians, Sir Patrick Jennings has reserved a number of copies which it is proposed shall be sent to leading personages in India.

The second day of the Australian Jockey Club Autumn meeting brought about some really good racing, and the struggle for the Sydney Cup between Normanby and Velocipede was one of the grandest that have ever been witnessed upon the metropolitan course. Velocipede, who went to the front when a mile from home, carried on the running until the last stride, when Normanby just got up in time and defeated him by half a head. The winner was heavily backed, but the second and third horses, Velocipede and Lord of the Lake, had few supporters, and were regarded as being amongst the greatest outsiders in the race, and the victory of either would have been a severe blow to the public.

The successful candidates at the late matriculation examination at the Sydney University came from the following educational establishments:—All Saints' College, Bathurst, 3; Cooerwull Academy, Bowenfels, 1; Grammar School, Brisbane, 8; Grammar School, Newcastle, 1; Grammar School, Sydney, 19; High School (Public) Sydney, 8; High School West Maitland, 1; Katoomba College, 1; the King's School, 1; Miss E. C. Baxter, 1; Newington College, 6; St. Ignatius' College, Riverview, 5; St. Patrick's College, Goulburn, 3; Mr. F. Butler, 2; Mr. J. N. Dalton, 2; Mr. A. H. Davis, Goulburn, 1; Mr. Kinloch, 2; Mr. J. Kinloch and Rev. J. Hillyar, 2; Mr. J. M'Manamey, 1; Mr. G. E. Rich and Mr. L. Armstrong, 10; Dr. Sly, Goulburn, 1; Rev. D. Smith, 1; Mr. F. ff. Swanwick, Brisbane, 1; Mr. F. Lyon Weiss, 1; private study, 11: total, 83. The total number of candidates was 114.

With reference to a statement recently published, to the effect that on the hoisting of the German flag over portions of New Guinea, New Britain, and the Duke of York Island, by the German man-of-war Elisabeth, a fight occurred between the marines and the natives, in which numbers of the former were killed, Captain Pfitzner, of the German schooner Agnes Edgell, who was at Matupe, New Britain, and boarded the Elisabeth on her return from her expedition, states that nothing of the kind took place, and that the natives had only to see the smoke from a vessel, however small, to run away inland. It is quite possible, he says, that some of the German marines died from fever while visiting New Guinea, but he ridicules the idea of a fight having occurred between the natives and any portion of the crew on board the man-of-war.

Yesterday, while the Buninyong (s.) was backing out of the wharf, she collided with the small ketch Vision, which was at anchor off Pyrmont, and sank her. No one was hurt.

The Easter volunteer encampment was brought to a close yesterday, having lasted since Friday, when the men marched into camp. In the morning the large torpedo which failed to explode on the Monday, was towed out into the little bay off Cobbler's Beach, at Middle Head, and was exploded in 15 feet of water. It threw up a column of water about 400 feet in height, while a large pine spar which was fastened above the torpedo was broken into three pieces, and these which were thrown up to an estimated height of a thousand feet. The sight was a remarkably fine one, and great regret was expressed that the attempt to fire it on Monday did not succeed. The 3rd Regiment left camp shortly after noon, and the remainder of the troops at 3.30. Those troops who were in the South Head encampment marched out at about 3 o'clock, and reached the Victoria Barracks by road at 5.30. From an official return sent to the Acting Colonial Secretary by Colonel Roberts, it would appear that the actual number of men under arms was 1647 of all ranks, exclusive of the Naval Brigade and the Naval Artillery, who were employed afloat.

A large number of wharf labourers and seagoing men employed on shore in connection with the mercantile business have offered their services through Mr. E. W. O'Sullivan for enrolment in the Naval Brigade, and some hundreds of them have been actually enrolled. Mr. Dalley on Tuesday addressed a letter to them, thanking them for the patriotic offer of their services, and intimating that in the event of the formation of a Naval Reserve the services of the several hundreds more who had volunteered to serve would be thankfully accepted by the Government, but that at present the vessels at the disposal of the Government would absorb only the members of the Naval Brigade and its increased strength.

At a meeting held in St. Mark's schoolroom, Darling Point, on Monday evening, the Rev. Latimer Jackson, M.A., incumbent of St. James', addressed those present concerning the mission which it is proposed shall be conducted in the former parish during the early part of June next. Several ladies and gentlemen consented to give their hearty assistance and to endeavour to make the mission a success. A vote of thanks having been accorded the rev. gentleman by acclamation, the meeting terminated with the benediction.

The annual meeting in connection with the Woollahra branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society was held in the School Hall, Woollahra, last evening. Mr. J. R. Fairfax presided, and there was an unusually large audience present. The report, &c., was unanimously adopted, and it was ordered that it be printed for circulation. A resolution was passed thanking the committee for their past labours, and soliciting their continued services and support; and addresses were delivered in support of the society's aims by Revs. H. T. Robjohns, B.A., Dr. Gilchrist, and Hon. Alexander Gordon, M.L.C. Revs. W. G. Lawes, E. Fox Thomas, K. C. Corner, and S. Bryant also spoke briefly, and a substantial collection was made at the conclusion.

The ordinary fortnightly meeting of the Parramatta Borough Council was held yesterday afternoon. Applications for permission to erect a signboard above an awning and for the placing of a gas-lamp in Dixon street were referred to the improvement and lighting committees respectively. A resolution asking the council to take steps to have the Fire Brigades Act extended to Parramatta was by consent allowed to stand over till next meeting. The annual fee for membership of the Municipal Association was voted, and the Mayor and Alderman Byrnes were appointed delegates thereto. It was decided to erect gas lamps at the intersection of Factory and Castle streets and Isabella-street and the Pennant Hills-road. The council then rose.

For years past the Newtown road has been a cause of complaint to travellers by it, for the clouds of dust which sweep along it whenever a fresh breeze springs up, no matter from what point of the compass, are an irritating nuisance of the worst description. Now, however, a change for the better will soon occur as regards the section between the railway bridge and the Deaf and Dumb and Blind Asylum, for this portion of the road is being paved with wooden blocks. Messrs. M'Ardle and Thompson, who fulfilled satisfactorily their contract for a section of the Sydney water supply works, were the successful tenderers for this contract also, and would have completed it by the 24th of February last, the specified time, had the Government fulfilled their obligation and given them a constant and sufficient supply of wooden cubes to work with. The supply has been intermittent, and so scant that the contractors, who at one time were able to keep about 200 men busy, have had to reduce their list to 150, and even now have not too large an amount of material to work with. The paving of the tramway line and the southern portion of the roadway has been completed, and the northern part of the roadway has been finished nearly to Egan-street. If the present supply of blocks be maintained, the whole contract will be finished in five weeks, for the work is now progressing at the rate of from 40 to 45 lineal yards per day; but everything is dependent upon the ability of the contractors to obtain from the Government material to work with. The blocks already laid down seem to be of excellent quality, well set; for though for the last three months the half road has had to bear the weight and friction of very heavy traffic, including numerous strings of ponderous brickcarts, there are no signs of subsidence in it. The wooden pavement is not by any means the only improvement the Newtown road has undergone during the last few months. New buildings are springing up on each side of it, and are of a quality which would grace any street in Sydney itself. At the corner of King-street and Watkin-street are Tabrett's-buildings, a handsome lofty terrace comprising an hotel and a number of shops; at the opposite corner is a large new structure; near the Asylum a fine store has been put up; near the railway bridge the new court-house is being built, and is rapidly assuming the appearance of one of the best specimens of architecture of which any of our suburbs can boast, and not far off is a very handsome shop, the walls lined with porcelain tiles, and the floor neatly paved.

The sittings of the Metropolitan Quarter Sessions were continued yesterday at Darlinghurst, before Mr. District Court Judge Dowling. A number of cases were disposed of. Robert Adair, for forgery and uttering, was sentenced to two years' hard labour; Frederick Laurent, for larceny and theft from a dwelling, received two sentences of five years' penal servitude, the sentences to be concurrent. Robert Jones, alias Smith, for breaking and entering, was sentenced to five years' hard labour. Frederick Trueman was acquitted on a charge of stealing jewellery from the person. Francisco Valvassore, an Italian labourer, was found guilty, and remanded for sentence, for the robbery of a watch. Peter Frederick, a man of colour, received a sentence of six months' hard labour for larceny. John Ryan, charged with stealing, was found not guilty, and discharged. Robert Henry was remanded for sentence on a charge of having criminally assaulted a girl under the age of fourteen. A charge of abduction against the same prisoner was not proceeded with. Thomas Maloney was acquitted on a charge of having stolen a ring, the evidence proving that his sister had given the ring to him. Ten cases are set down for hearing to-day.

An inquest has been dispensed with in the case of the death of John Sterling, who expired very suddenly in a tramcar, near Liverpool-street, on Tuesday, as Dr. Harrison, who had been attending him for some time previous to his decease, certified that death was brought about by consumption. The deceased was 27 years of age, and lately resided at No. 14, Rose-street, Darlington.

Yesterday afternoon the body of a female infant was discovered floating in the waters of Johnston's Bay by a boy named William Mercer, who resides in Dixon-street, Balmain. He gave information to the Balmain police, and the body, which was in an advanced stage of decomposition, was removed to the morgue at the Circular Quay. The matter will be reported to the city coroner.

The Bishop of Peterborough writes with reference to prayers for the troops in the Soudan:—"I understand that many of the clergy of this diocese are desirous of receiving some direction from me as to the prayers to be used in churches on behalf of our troops now engaged in warfare in Africa. I write, therefore, to say that it appears to me that we cannot do better than to avail ourselves of the provision for special intercession which is made for us by our Church, and which is not only acceptable in itself, but, under all the circumstances of the case, best calculated to secure—what all must feel so desirable—united prayer. I would wish, therefore, that the clergy of this diocese should before the Litany, or when the Litany is not used before the prayer for all sorts and conditions of men, ask the prayers of their congregations 'for our troops now engaged in war in Africa, and especially for the sick and wounded, and also for all to whom this war has brought or may bring sorrow or affliction.' I cannot refrain from adding an expression of my hope that in the hearts of those who may join in this supplication there may be a thought for the sufferings of the sick and wounded and mourners amongst those who, though contending against us, are still our fellow-creatures, and the children of our common God and Father." The Times also says:—"The Chief Rabbi has drawn up the following form of prayer to be offered up in the Jewish Synagogues:—'O Lord, God of Hosts! we draw nigh unto Thee this day to supplicate Thee on behalf of the brave men who pass through seas and deserts, armed for war in a far-off country, faithful servants of their Queen and of their nation. Preserve, we beseech Thee, their going out and their coming in; preserve them from all evil; keep them from sickness; may the sun not smite them by day, nor the cold by night. Cover their head in the day of battle; gird them with victory; may their lives be precious in Thy sight. Show the leaders of the hosts the way wherein they must go, and the work that they must do, to the end that the land may be at rest, that violence be no more heard within her bounds, neither wasting nor destruction. Thou, who rulest on high, bless the Queen, the mother of our country. Vouchsafe a spirit of wisdom and understanding, a spirit of counsel and might to her Ministers, to the nobles of the kingdom and the chosen men thereof assembled in Parliament. Prosper their deliberations, and establish Thou the work of their hands. Grant welfare and plenty to our Empire, that there be no discontent in her borders, no complaining in the streets of her cities. Speed the days when abundance of peace will flourish on the face of the earth, when the world will be filled with love and brotherhood, and the knowledge of Thee, O living God. Amen.'"

The Melbourne Telegraph relates that a remarkably narrow escape from a terrible accident occurred on Monday morning on the Frankston railway. By some unaccountable means the up and down trains were travelling on the line at the same time, and their conductors did not appear to be aware of the mistake until they sighted each other when in the vicinity of the Carrum Carrum swamp. The signals of alarm and the sudden application of the brakes startled the passengers, with whom both trains were crowded, and attracted their attention to the threatened collision. One man, in his apprehension, sprang out of the carriage in which he was seated, but owing, happily, to the promptitude of the guards and drivers, both trains were brought to a standstill without anything serious having resulted, though they faced one another with only an interval of about 100 paces between them.

A feeling of mingled pride and shame (writes The People of 22nd February) must be uppermost in the minds of all who think of the noble answer which our colonies have returned to the insulting suggestions of their worthlessness to the old country that many members of the Liberal party have not been slow to make. The coldness of the Colonial Office, the absolute refusal of Lords Derby and Granville to listen to the just representations of the Australians, and to protect them from foreign, and, possibly, dangerous neighbours, have been answered—how? By the immediate offer of assistance the very moment Old England was supposed to need it. This is heaping coals of fire on our head with a vengeance.

A Cochin paper learns that "Sir Frederick Roberts has recommended to the Government of Madras the enlistment in Malabar of a native force of 600 men, under the command of First Class Police Inspector Ahmed Ghurakel Khan Bahadoor; and that his Excellency was moved to offer his suggestion in view of the numerous cares and engagements of an imperial nature which engross the regular Indian army, and of the turbulent and threatening attitude of the Moplahs in Malabar."

The interest of both the United States and France in keeping up the value of silver is (says the Saturday Review) great and obvious. The United States now are the largest producers of silver in the world, and the American people are strongly in favour of protecting every American industry. Moreover, bi-metallism is the old policy of the Union, and the Americans are essentially a conservative people. Lastly, the silver interest is wealthy, closely united, and extremely skilful in managing legislative assemblies. It will fight hard in defence of the Bland Act, and it would be rash, therefore, to assume that it will not succeed. In France, again, the amount of silver in circulation is enormous. The Bank of France alone holds about 41½ millions sterling of the metal. Therefore, if France were to demonetise silver, she would have to replace the vast mass of the metal that is now in circulation by gold, and at the same time she would have to sell the useless silver. The purchase of gold would be very expensive, and upon the sale of the silver the losses would be extremely heavy. Add to all this that the opinion is strongly held both in the United States and in France that a contraction of the circulation would be extremely injurious to trade. Gold, alone, it is said, does not exist in sufficient quantity in the world to supply all the needs of the commercial countries; and, therefore, if silver is demonetised, the money markets of the world will be disturbed, trade will be depressed, and prices will fall ruinously.

THE SOUDAN CAMPAIGN.

TAMAI BURNED BY THE ENEMY.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

SUAKIM, April 7.

The Scots Guards have to-day escorted a large convoy to a zareba on the way to Handoub, where they will remain. General Sir Gerald Graham's staff will accompany the troops to Handoub to-morrow, but will return in the evening. Spies who arrived in the camp to-day assert that Tamai has been deserted by the enemy and since burned.

DESPATCH FROM COLONEL RICHARDSON.

The Acting Colonial Secretary, yesterday morning, received a telegram from Colonel Richardson, which was substantially the same as that received from the press special correspondents with the expedition.

PATRIOTIC FUND.

The sum of £20 15s. was forwarded to the Patriotic Fund yesterday morning by Mr. Alfred Collis, hon. secretary of the Penrith branch. The sum of £7 1s. was received from Mr. Phillip Anderson, being the result of a performance given at Murrurundi. The teaching staff of the Kiama Public school sent to the hon. treasurers of the Fund a day's pay each.

The following letter has been received by Mr. W. A. Hutchinson, M.L.A., honorary secretary of the Fund:—

"National Bank of Australasia, Melbourne, March 31.

"Dear Sir,—I am requested by Mr. A. J. Livingstone Learmonth to forward to you £1000 as his contribution to the Patriotic Fund, and I accordingly enclose his cheque for that sum. If exchange is chargeable, please inform me and it will be remitted. The donation will appear as the contribution of Andrew Learmonth.

"Yours faithfully,

"Robert Gillespie."

Yuill, manager in Australia of the Orient Steam Navigation Company, in which it is stated that arrangements have been made between that company and the Imperial Government, whereby the outward and homeward Orient steamers will call at Aden, and a connection will be established between there and Suakim, for the benefit of the New South Wales troops in the Soudan.

INTERCOLONIAL NEWS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, Wednesday.

Major-General Scratchley last week submitted to Mr. Service a rough draft of his proposals relative to the government of New Guinea, and the application of the contributions from the colonies towards the expenses of the protectorate. Mr. Colton, Premier of South Australia, who was also supplied with a copy of the proposals, consulted with Mr. Service on Tuesday before leaving for South Australia. The proposals will be laid before the Governments of all the colonies, the representatives of which are invited to confer after time has been allowed for fair consideration by the various Ministries. At a meeting of the Cabinet yesterday the proposals were briefly discussed; but nothing definite will be done for the present.

The Albury Circuit Court was opened to-day by Mr. Justice Innes. The deputy sheriff announced that there were no criminal cases for trial, and, after congratulating his Honor on the fact, presented him with a pair of white kid gloves. His Honor in reply, said that he reciprocated most cordially the expression of gratification from the deputy sheriff in making the announcement that this was a maiden assize. He was told that this was not the first occasion that this signal distinction had belonged to the town, and, though the former instance had not been within his personal recollection, he could say that on the only other occasion upon which he had presided at the Albury Court the calendar had been very light, and it had been his duty to congratulate them on the fact. He was only too glad to find that Albury kept up that good character. It was only just now that he had been asked whether the usual practice of reading the Royal proclamation against vice and immorality should be followed, and he had been obliged to reply that there seemed to be no vice or immorality to rebuke. It was most gratifying in a town where there were so many evidences of material prosperity to see that there was also this growing regard for law and order, and for the obligations of the higher life of citizenship. Such a feeling was, he trusted, the cause of the present very gratifying spectacle.

MEETING OF SELECTORS AT BOMBALA.

[By Telegraph.]

BOMBALA, Wednesday.

A large meeting of the selectors of this district was held at Rowley's Imperial Hotel this afternoon, to discuss the working of the present Land Act. Mr. E. Jonas, J.P., was voted to the chair, and he briefly explained the object of the meeting. The following resolutions were proposed, and carried unanimously:—1. "That in the opinion of this meeting, the Land Act of 1884 is utterly unsuited to the requirements of the Eastern Division of the colony; which, from the advance of settlement on Crown lands therein, should have been allowed to remain under the old Act of 1861 and its successive amendments up to 1880, as no change was desired or needed for the benefit of the colony generally, or the settlers in that division especially." 2. "That if Parliament will not comply with the request to alter the present Land Act so as to suit the requirements of the Eastern Division, it be asked to alter it so far as regards the preleases, to allow them to remain as under the former Act, and to be maintained in their entirety, the converted preleases and conditional leases as now provided for under the Land Act, 1884, rendering the position of the holders untenable, and the conditions of fencing impossible to be complied with." 3. "That this meeting pledges itself to use its utmost efforts to have the above resolutions adopted by any candidate for election in the Monaro district at next general election, and not to vote for any candidate who will not support their views." The following gentlemen, who addressed the meeting, were unanimous in condemning the present Land Act in its application to the Eastern Division:—Messrs. Myers, J. E. Wright, Douch, R. Stevenson, Devereux, and Atkins. It was decided to sign a petition similar to one signed at Delegate, and to co-operate with Delegate in endeavouring to get the Act altered to suit the requirements of these districts.

THE EASTER MANŒUVRES.

Yesterday witnessed the termination of the Easter Volunteer encampment, which commenced on Good Friday. At Middle Head the large torpedo was exploded in the little bay at Cobbler's Beach, the sight being a most magnificent one. The 3rd Regiment left camp shortly after noon, and the remainder of the troops at 3.15. At South Head they departed in a body at 3 o'clock, marching to the Victoria Barracks, which were reached at 5.30. It must be admitted that the encampment has done much good by pointing out several weak spots in the volunteer organisation, and these will, no doubt, be noted by the authorities, and eliminated on future occasions.

From an official return sent to the Acting Colonial Secretary by Colonel Roberts, it would appear that the actual number of men under arms engaged in the operations at Middle and South Heads was 1647 of all ranks. This is, of course, exclusive of the Naval Brigade and the Naval Artillery, which were employed afloat.

OPERATIONS AT MIDDLE HEAD.

Although the encampment was broken up yesterday, there are several matters of interest in connection with it which yet remain to be stated. At the staff mess dinner on Tuesday evening, after the toast of "The Queen," Colonel Roberts proposed "The health of Lieutenant-Colonel Christie," who accompanied the expedition to the Soudan, where he tendered his resignation. Colonel Roberts stated that some very unpleasant rumours had got into circulation with regard to Lieutenant-Colonel Christie's action, and he had actually been accused of cowardice by men who had never known him. The real reason of his resignation, said Colonel Roberts, was the fact that his health had been gradually failing him for years. Previous to the offer of the services of the Contingent being made, Lieutenant-Colonel Christie had intimated to the Commandant that he intended to tender his resignation. When the Contingent was under orders to sail, he, at the special request of the Commandant, agreed to accompany it, as he had been so thoroughly efficient and useful in the position of brigade major. On the arrival of the troops at the Soudan, however, his services would not be called into such active requisition, as the troops would come under the supervision of the brigade major of whatever regiments they were associated with. Colonel Roberts also testified to the fact that Lieutenant-Colonel Christie was a brave soldier, who had gone through plenty of hard fighting in India, and who had done a very large amount of hard work while in the service. The toast was then drunk with enthusiasm.

An unfortunate accident happened on Tuesday night, while the batteries at Outer Middle Head were engaged in repelling the naval attack. A private of the 2nd Regiment, while watching the manœuvres, fell into a cutting near the batteries and dislocated his thigh, necessitating his removal from the camp to his home.

At 11 o'clock yesterday morning the interesting operation of firing the large torpedo was successfully performed by Captain Walker and his staff. Every portion of the torpedo and of the firing appliances was closely examined and tested, and the morning was spent in preparing for the great event. A large red wooden disc marked the spot selected for the purpose off Cobbler's Beach, near the camp, in about 15 feet of water. Shortly before 11 o'clock the torpedo, which was enclosed in a large water-tight iron case, was carried across the sand by eight men and towed out by a large boat. It was sunk to a depth of about 13 feet, while above it floated a large pine spar nearly 20 feet in length, and about 15 inches in diameter. Over the spar floated a red danger flag, which the steamers and boats very carefully kept clear of. Captain Walker had charge of the firing board, which was posted on the high ground to the left of the beach; while Colonel Roberts took up his post with the staff officers on the right. The surrounding rocks were lined with volunteers, but the number of civilian spectators was very limited. Punctually at 11 o'clock Lieutenant Hammond, who had charge of the mechanical details, reported that everything was in readiness. Those people who had approached rather near retreated somewhat, and for a moment everyone waited with bated breath. Then Captain Walker closed the circuit, and the torpedo was fired. There was no defect on this occasion. Suddenly a huge column of water leaped out of the placid bed of the sea to a height of about 400 feet, accompanied by a dull muffled roar, that echoed and re-echoed away through the surrounding hills. There was something in the scene to recall the closing lines of Byron's "Siege of Corinth":—

"The waves a moment backward bound,
The hills that shake, although unrent,
As if an earthquake passed:
The thousand shapeless things all driven,
In cloud and flame athwart the heaven,
By that tremendous blast
Proclaimed the desperate conflict o'er."

With a crash the column of water sank back to rest again, but a thin spray hung for a few moments over the spot, giving a vague misty outline of the recent watery eruption. Then it drifted slowly away and gradually disappeared from view. The water around the site of the explosion was churned into foam and discoloured by sand, and a gradually widening ring of waves rushed away towards the different beaches. But where was the heavy pine spar which had floated above the torpedo? Far up in the clear air there were visible what appeared to be two small objects, each about a foot in length. Higher and higher they were driven as though by the sport of the winds, until they reached the height of at least a thousand feet. Then they began to descend, growing larger and larger each moment, and one fell with a mighty crash about 300 yards out to sea, while the other disappeared over the headland to the right. A boat at once secured the one which had fallen in front, and what looked only a few inches in length in the air proved to be a piece of the spar between five and six feet long. A hearty cheer rent the air when the explosion had become an accomplished fact, and general regret was expressed that the torpedo was not fired on Monday. Several boats were at once manned, and a number of fish were picked up, but most of those killed were found to belong to a non-edible variety known as the box-fish.

The departure of the troops was heralded by the customary preliminaries in the morning. The ground was carefully cleared of all rubbish, dead leaves, &c., which were burned, the flies of the tents were opened, and everywhere the bustle and excitement indicated the approaching event. At noon the men were ordered to stand to their tents for the purpose of striking them, and on the bugle call being given the tents vanished like magic, the men taking them down and packing them with remarkable rapidity. Shortly after midday the 3rd Regiment was paraded and marched out of camp to Bradley's Head, whence they took steamer for Sydney. The rest of the men were then left to their own devices until 3 o'clock, when they were formed up in quarter columns of companies, with the Artillery on the extreme right, the 2nd Regiment in the centre, and the 3rd on the left. Colonel Roberts then addressed the men briefly. He thanked them for their good conduct in camp, and hoped that they would meet again under similar circumstances next year. Should they do so he would endeavour to allow them a little more amusement and relaxation than they had obtained on the present occasion. Cheers were given for Colonel Roberts, and the companies moved off in fours from the left, with their bands playing. They marched by the Military-road to Milson's Point, where they took the ferry steamer for Sydney. By 4 o'clock the camp was deserted by all save the few who remained behind to make the final arrangements for the removal of stores, &c. The staff officers will leave to-day.

The following is Dr. Dansey's official report to the Commandant on the sanitary condition of the camp:—

"Camp, Middle Head, April 8, 1885.

"Sir,—I have the honour to inform you that during the six days continuous training of the Volunteer forces the health of the troops has been generally good, there having been only two serious cases,—one of acute rheumatism, now in the Sydney Infirmary, the other being a hip dislocation, the latter patient preferring to be sent home. I would recommend that the attention of all examining medical officers for recruits should be called to the necessity for a strict inspection, and, if possible to be ascertained, the state of their former health, previous to the signing of the attestation paper, the men in question having suffered on two prior occasions from rheumatic fever and fits respectively. I would suggest their being discharged by reason of their incapacity to perform the duties of a soldier. I have, &c.

"R. F. Dansey, Principal Medical Officer, Camp."

THE ENCAMPMENT AT SOUTH HEAD.

At the morning parades yesterday the field and garrison Artillery were exercised at gun drill, the [illegible]

neers at defence works, and the Rifles at attack formations. At 1 o'clock in the afternoon tents were struck, and other work rendered necessary by the near approach of the abandonment of the ground was performed. A brigade order was issued during the day to the effect that No. 5 Battery of Volunteer Artillery was at liberty to return to Newcastle at any time within three days, and No. 6 Battery would be required to return to Wollongong on Thursday by the steamer Ajax, leaving Circular Quay at 11 o'clock at night. The conduct of the men throughout the period of encampment has been very good, there being a remarkable absence of insobriety. The staff surgeon's (Dr. M'Donagh's) duties were not of a serious nature, the cases requiring the exercise of his skill consisting for the most part of rheumatism (renewals of attacks), incisions, and abrasions, the latter having been occasioned by falls over rocks and bushes, and sometimes into ditches which run across the battery. Dr. M'Donagh was unable to speak in terms of approval of the hospital equipment. Costly drugs and instruments of such a character that they were not likely to be required had been provided, while appliances and remedies of a simple nature had been overlooked. He was satisfied with the quality of the food with, perhaps, he said, some unavoidable exceptions.

Shortly before 3 o'clock the brigade was formed up on the plot of levelled ground in line of quarter column, and the Brigade-Major read the following brigade order:—

"On breaking up the Easter camp for 1885, the officer commanding at South Head has great pleasure in drawing the attention of that portion of the force which he has the honour to command, to the commendation which the Commandant has been pleased to introduce into the general order just issued by him from Middle Head. Lieutenant-Colonel Raymond feels that the praise accorded to his command is well merited, but could only have been gained by the assistance tendered to him by the officers, non-commissioned officers and men camped at South Head. When all worked so heartily and well, it is almost invidious to single out individuals, but he cannot forbear thanking the Acting Brigade Major, the Hon. F. A. Wright (Lieutenant 1st Regiment) and his office staff, for the efficient manner in which the duties were carried out so indefatigably under no easy circumstances. Also to Major Richards, on whom devolved the command of the 1st Regiment Infantry, to Major Owen and Captain Chapman commanding the Artillery in camp, and their respective commands, and to Surgeon M'Donagh his thanks are due. The Engineers also did good work in their branch of the service. He also desires to thank Lieutenant Le Patourel for his assistance in regard to the issue of ammunition from magazines, &c. In conclusion, Lieutenant-Colonel Raymond, in wishing his comrades farewell, hopes to meet them again (D.V.) next Easter, and trusts that by having a larger number of men in camp, more extended operations may be carried out."

The brigade was then marched off in the direction of Watson's Bay, the colonel commanding and the various commanding officers of regiments being cheered as they passed through the Green Point Battery by a detachment of the Permanent Artillery, and cheering being also exchanged between this detachment and the men forming the brigade. The Victoria Barracks were reached at half-past 5 o'clock, the march home having occupied two and-a-half hours.

The brigade having there been formed in line of quarter column by the right was called to attention.

The Colonel Commanding then addressed the forces. He said:—Officers, non-commissioned officers, and men,—You have had a long march, and therefore I do not intend to keep you here long. I wish, however, simply to congratulate you upon the very good result of the encampment which has just closed. While I have had the honour of having you under my command, you have been a source of great pleasure to me. You have behaved yourselves like men, and I am sure you will all have a pleasant recollection of our camp at South Head. I will now ask you to give three cheers for the Queen. The call met with a most enthusiastic response, and was followed by the band playing the National Anthem. Ringing cheers for Colonel Raymond were, at the call of Mr. Wright, given, amidst the playing by the band of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Cheers having also been given for the Major of Brigade, for Major Richards, and for other commanding officers, the Colonel bade the men good-bye, and rode off the ground. The men were soon afterwards dismissed.

TUESDAY NIGHT'S ATTACK.

After the severe battle of Easter Monday, in which our defence forces did such great things against an imaginary enemy, it was naturally to be expected that there was not a very great amount of fight left in them, and that they would have quietly subsided into the ordinary routine of camp life previous to the resumption of the usual duties of private citizenship in a quiet community like this of ours in Sydney. But this was not the idea of at least one portion of our defence forces. Among those who have lately made up their minds to stand forward as foremost in their defence of our hearths and homes there is a corps called the Naval Volunteer Artillery whose proud boast it is that they are in every particular a volunteer force. They do not ask the Government to give them a subsidy on condition that they go through a certain amount of drills, but they cheerfully go through any amount of drills without any subsidy, and with only a desire to make themselves efficient. Moreover they seem to possess the fighting instinct so peculiar to Britons, and, therefore, after having assisted in carrying out the official programme of Easter Monday by working, in a most effectual manner, the gunboats in connection with the New South Wales defence fleet, they determined upon having a little bit of fun on their own account, and forming themselves into an extempore attack party with a view to test the readiness of our Volunteer artillery and infantry to defend our shores in the event of a real attack being made.

It must be understood that the Naval Volunteer Artillery were not in possession of gunboats of the most perfect description. But not having all that they could possibly desire, they wisely resolved upon making the best of such means as were ready to their hand, and these means were by no means despicable either. Within a comparatively recent time our Department of Harbours and Rivers has instituted an excellent arrangement known to the initiated as the hopper barge system. In a harbour like ours, where dredging is a matter of daily occurrence, it has always been found a matter of considerable expense to provide the means for towing the silt and other matter dredged up from the bottom of the harbour out to sea, and to facilitate this work these hopper barges were devised. They consist, in fact, of large and powerful vessels, with the steam-engines of a tug combined with the arrangements of a barge, in one bottom; and they are able to convey a large cargo of silt out to sea, where, by an ingenious combination of machinery, the stuff that has been removed from the harbour can be deposited "fathoms deep," where it can do no harm to anybody. But these vessels, it appears, are capable of a more important duty. In time of peace they can peacefully convey cargoes of silt out to sea, and deposit them in the depths of the ocean, but in time of war these vessels, with their powerful machinery, can be made invaluable as gunboats for the defence of the port. They are large roomy boats, and when the "hopper" part of them is boarded over they afford every facility for working the guns and for the manœuvres of a large body of men—as was effectually proved on Easter Monday. On that occasion our two hopper barges, the Neptune and the Juno, formed part of the defence fleet, which, after engaging the imaginary enemy out at sea, entered the Heads, and under the shelter of the shore batteries, defied all attack. But Lieutenant Arnold, the commanding officer of the Naval Volunteer Artillery force, was not satisfied with the victory thus bloodlessly obtained, and burning with a desire for more glory, formed the daring design of turning the two vessels into an attacking force with a view of testing the efficiency of the shore defences, in the event of a raid being made upon them by a predatory enemy. It was in the first instance resolved to make the affair a veritable surprise, and with that view there was no general muster of the Naval Volunteer Artillery called, but only such few of the men as could be reached without difficulty were notified that their services would be required in the evening. That, however, was quite sufficient for Volunteers, and as many of them as had heard of the matter turned up with the utmost promptitude on Tuesday evening. The Government have placed at the disposal of the corps a grand boatshed close to Fort Macquarie, and this was made the trysting point—the hopper barges, the Neptune and the Juno being anchored in the cove, a few cables' length away. The shed is a two-story building, which being well lighted, makes an excellent drill-shed. The corps have here a large cutter, capable of holding some 60 or 70 men, and two good whaleboats, and they keep here their arms, ammunition, and accoutrements.

As has been already said, it was intended at first that the affair of Tuesday night should be really a surprise, but somehow the intention of the Naval Volunteer Artillery leaked out. Of course the rumour that one of the officers of that force got frightened lest the shore batteries should imagine the attack a real one and reply with real shot and shell, and that therefore he telegraphed to Colonel Roberts the fact that a sham attack was intended, is altogether untrue. It is much more likely that Colonel Roberts, like the wily old soldier that he is, had his spies and scouts about, and so got wind of what was contemplated. At all events, the camps at the Heads were on the alert, and the surprise was fully anticipated. The Naval Volunteer Artillery, however, unaware of this, in due course embarked on board the doughty hopper barges, prepared for all contingencies. The Neptune, which is commanded by Captain Robert Donald, an old sea dog, who won a medal in cutting-out operations in China in 1861, conveyed the Commandant of the N. V. A., Lieutenant Arnold, with whom were Lieutenant Kenneth Stuart, Sub-lieutenant Newsham, Staff-surgeon T. B. Clune, and Paymaster Cavill; while on the Juno, which is under the command of Captain Alexander, there was a force under the charge of Lieutenant Lee, assisted by Sub-lieutenants Bell and Newman. Each of these vessels, it should be mentioned, carried a 6-ton gun in the bows, capable of discharging a 64lb. shot, as well as a lighter gun to serve as a stern-chaser. The plan of operations was to proceed quietly down the harbour, and go a few miles out to sea, and then re-enter the Heads, taking the various batteries seriatim as they were reached. But on going down the harbour it was evident that the defenders were on the qui vive, for they had a most objectionable and inquisitive holophote, or electric light apparatus, on Middle Head, with which they persistently examined every vessel, whether steamer or sailing ship, that either entered the harbour or left it. This was rather unfortunate for the Neptune and the Juno, for they were just about getting the guns into working order when they came within the range of that searching electric light. However, they did all they could to put on an innocent appearance. The guns were hastily covered, and the crews hid themselves under the bulwarks, so that the two vessels presented all the appearance of two honest traders, the delusion being further kept up by an awkward, and very coaster like, whistling of the steam fog-horns. In due time the Heads were reached, and the two pirate ships calmly steamed out a few miles to sea. Then, having thoroughly deceived the shore defences, the filibusters made for the harbour—having doused masthead and side lights—and every man kept his mouth shut, lest the gleam of his teeth should reveal his whereabouts. In the meantime some peaceful coasting vessels were either entering the harbour or leaving it, and the inquisitive electricians on Middle Head were so busy scrutinising these that the privateers got through the Heads without being observed—the Neptune leading, and the Juno a short distance astern.

The Neptune had got past the South Head batteries, and well under those of Middle Head, before she was observed, but at length the blaze of the holophote came full upon her, lighting her up so that her crew had no difficulty in serving the bow gun, which sent a crashing shot into the Middle Head batteries. The Juno was equally ready, and sent another shot with grand effect. The Neptune then fired a second time full at the electric light, which ought to have been blown kite-high. By this time the forces on the South Head had turned out, and a heavy cannonade from that direction set in. The Juno engaged South Head, while the Neptune attacked Middle Head, and a brisk firing now took place. The camps were now fairly roused, and in a short time the sharp crack of the rifles was added to the ponderous boom of the heavy artillery, and the action became a desperate one. The electric light certainly showed the shore artillerymen where the attacking forces were, but at the same time it showed the invaders where to aim for, so that the account was almost equally balanced. The firing was kept up with great spirit, the guns being admirably served on both sides. The invaders were all the time working quietly up the harbour, firing both bow and stern. Presently George's Head was engaged, after the privateers had successfully run the gauntlet of a desperate storm of rifle bullets from South Head to Sharp's Point. Here the attacking fleet again got it hot, for the riflemen were ambushed along the shore all the way as far as Bradley's Head, and they poured in such a murderous fire that the piratic force must have suffered very heavy loss, although they continued nevertheless to work their way, under a continuous fire from the small arms, until they had passed the batteries, and got into the shelter of Fort Denison. Having thus successfully defied the fortifications, and captured Sydney, the whistle of the Neptune was made to sound "cock-a-doodle-doo" very loudly, and then some rockets were let off in token of victory. The Wolverene, which had taken no part in the combat, fired guns by way of salute to her comrades. They did not return the fire because they had expended all their ammunition, but they replied by a salvo of small arms, and the burning of blue lights, and they attempted to send up more rockets, but as the sticks were all expended the rockets went rather more down than up. Nevertheless the spirits of the filibusters were high, and as they came to their anchorage in Sydney Cove they gave lusty cheers for the Queen, for their officers, for the valiant captains of the hopper barges, and for the press. The proceedings then naturally terminated.

THE NIGHT ATTACK AS SEEN AT SOUTH HEAD.

So far as South Head was concerned, nothing was generally known of the contemplated attack until after the mess dinner, when a rumour gained currency that the hopper barges Neptune and Juno, acting as gunboats, were to make an attack upon the fortifications. A sharp look-out was kept from various elevated spots, and particularly from one of the 18-ton gun batteries, which was selected by Lieutenant the Hon. F. A. Wright, acting major of brigade, as a point for observation. This position commands an extensive view of the coast lines and of the harbour. At 9 o'clock "the alert" was sounded, and the 80-pounders at Green Point and the 12-ton gun at South Head were manned, the field artillery being placed in the positions they would be required to occupy to resist the progress of the expected enemy. The Infantry were paraded, and 20 rounds per man having been served out, they were quietly placed in the positions they would be expected to occupy, and were subsequently dismissed to their tents. The men were instructed to keep on their accoutrements and to observe perfect silence. "Lights out" was sounded, and was succeeded by the acting brigade-major personally visiting the entire camp, including cooking-houses, to see that the order was strictly obeyed. The camp was found to be in perfect darkness and silence, and every one on the qui vive for the attack, which was regarded as inevitable. At a quarter to 10 o'clock the hopper barges were observed quietly creeping down the harbour. A quarter of an hour later the alarm was given on a single bugle by the bugler attending the major of brigade, and the whole force at once quietly turned out under arms. The batteries were manned, and the riflemen were extended along the shores of the harbour from South Head to the site mounted by the main guard. Five companies, under Major Richards, assisted by Acting Major Farrell, occupied the position from South Head to a point south of Lady Bay. Captain Morris had command of another company, which strengthened the main guard, and were extended to meet the lines of the other portion of the regiment, being specially charged with the duty of preventing the possibility of a boat attack at Camp Cove. The Colonel Commanding (Colonel Raymond) took up a position on the bridge of the Green Point Battery, and the Brigade-Major under Colonel Raymond generally supervised operations from the mound of the battery, using marine glasses to watch and report movements of the enemy. About half-past 10 o'clock one of the hopper barges came round South Reef and opened fire on the fortifications. A response came at once from the 12-ton gun, near the Hornby Light. The firing was promptly taken up by the No. 1 and 2 batteries at Green Point, and also by the field battery. The guns at Middle Head also belched out great tongues of fire and wreaths of smoke, and as the barge came further into the harbour and made towards the western channel the whole of the ordnance at the Green Point Battery were brought to bear upon it. The first barge was followed at a short interval by another, a distance of about 400 yards separating the vessels. The barges made towards the western channel. By this time the whole of the guns at Green Point, and those at Middle and George's Heads, were thundering at the "enemy." One of the barges having ventured within easy range of the riflemen posted on the eastern shore, the musketry rang out, and the enemy also used their small arms. Some 20 minutes after the commencement of the attack two boats were observed approaching the southern side of Steel Point, with, it was supposed, the object of effecting a landing. The boats being regarded as "hostile," the force under the command of Captain Morris and the guard under Lieutenant Foster opened with a withering fire. About this time one of the hopper barges sent up rockets of distress, and the defending forces ceased firing upon her. This having relieved the two southern guns at Green Point, they were directed at the back of Steel Point with the object of demolishing the two boats. A fierce fusilade was kept up by the sharpshooters at South Head, until the two hopper barges were silenced and had practically retired. The back of South Head Camp was enveloped in a mass of thick sulphurous smoke; but there being a nice steady breeze off the harbour, the operations of the gunners were unimpeded by smoke, except by an occasional cloud carried from the attacking vessels. The cannonade lasted fully an hour, and was maintained with great vigour on both sides. During the whole course of it the electric light was kept sweeping round the harbour, and every now and then was directed upon the attacking vessels, bringing them out clearly and distinctly and enabling the artillerymen to lay their guns with what appeared to be great precision. The guns were fired with great rapidity, especially the 16-pounder field-pieces under the direction of Captain Chapman. The men returned to their tents at midnight, glad to obtain that rest which a very heavy day's work had rendered doubly welcome. It was, however, three hours later before the Colonel-Commanding and the Major of Brigade retired, the time being devoted to preparations for an expected renewal of the attack.

AMUSEMENTS.

EUPHONIC ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY'S CONCERT.

Last night the Euphonic Orchestral Society gave a concert in the Protestant Hall in aid of the Patriotic Fund. The hall throughout, from platform to galleries, was more tastefully decorated than it has been for many a day. The platform was crowded with performers, the orchestra numbering nearly 50. The concert opened with Boildieu's "Caliph of Bagdad," played by the orchestra with spirit, but there appeared to be too great a preponderance of the heavier toned instruments, a defect that was noticeable in a greater or less degree through all the concerted pieces. In the overture, "La Dame Blanche," by the same author, the instruments were better balanced, and played with more accord, but there was, in some cases, a lack of individual correctness. In the War March from Mendelssohn's "Athalie," the orchestra eclipsed all their previous efforts, and rendered it in a very effective manner. Perhaps the best number of the evening was the violin solo "7th air" (De Beriot), by Mr. H. Graham, whose manipulation showed that he was master of his instrument. Of the other numbers, "Ehren on the Rhine," and "The Gates of the West," sung by Miss Hathaway, gained favour with the audience, the latter solo better suiting her powerful voice. The vocal duet, Carpenter's "Army and Navy," by Messrs. Brown and W. F. Darley, was one of the best efforts of the evening; and Mr. S. Harcourt contributed "The Anchor's weighed" (Braham), and "Yes, let me like a Soldier fall" (Wallace). A recitation by Mr. W. J. Chapman, "The Charge of the Light Brigade," was given in such a manner as to call forth an encore. Mr. John Miller and Mr. J. Camphin acted as leaders, Mr. Henry Graham was conductor, and Mr F. Maxted piano accompanist, all efficiently performing their onerous duties. With very few exceptions those who took part were young amateurs, and in view of that the concert may be regarded as a success.

ART SOCIETY'S CONCERT.

The Art Society's exhibition at the Town Hall was attended yesterday by about 300 persons, the majority of them being present in the evening, when a pleasant little concert was given, visitors being thus enabled to please the eye and the ear at one and the same time. Miss Fabien sang "The Two Chords" and "True till Death" with artistic expression, and Miss Glendinning—whose voice is very sweet, though not powerful—sang "For Ever" and "Alla Stella Confidente," each of which was interpreted with great taste. The violin obligato to the latter number was played by Mons. de Willimoff, and Mr. Mitchell played the pianoforte accompaniment to both songs. Mons. de Willimoff was heartily applauded for his performance of the "Andante and Finale" of Mendelssohn's "Concerto;" and Mr. Charles Huenerbein's patriotic march, "To the Front," played by the composer himself, was a great success. The Exhibition will only be open three days longer, and on the closing night, Saturday next, a grand vocal and instrumental concert, under the direction of Mr. Charles Huenerbein, will be given.

SHAKESPERIAN FANCY FAIR.

The attendance at the Shakesperian Fancy Fair, held in the Lion Arcade, King-street, Newtown, was very large yesterday, and numerous purchases were made, the fair being open as usual from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m., and from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m. In the evening a concert was given, and this contributed very much to the enjoyment of patrons. The procession of stallholders, who all represented characters from Shakespeare's plays, was picturesque and interesting, the ladies being all richly and tastefully dressed. The fair will remain open for a fortnight at least, and if it should prove a pronounced financial success, will be continued for a week longer.

A FENIAN CONGRESS IN PARIS.

The Paris correspondent of the Standard has been furnished with an account of a meeting of the Irish revolutionary party, which was secretly held in that city on Sunday evening. "The meeting was composed of 11 delegates and a few privileged sympathising spectators, who did not, however, take any part in the proceedings. Of the 11 delegates, three represented America, two had been sent by Ireland, two came from England, two represented the European continent, and the two others were the delegates of the Invincibles. A Nihilist, representing a group of Russian Nihilists, and a manufacturer of torpedoes, who is stated to be a Frenchman, were also present. A man known all over the world by the dynamiters as Kinl, and who was the planner of the recent explosions in London, was unanimously voted into the chair. Michael Flannery was nominated secretary to the convention. A cipher telegram was read from the chief of the Invincibles, 'Number One,' or P. J. Tynan, and it condemned in strong language the project of a fusion between the dynamiters and Invincibles, on the ground that such a fusion would not be politic at the present moment. Tynan, however, wished 'God-speed' to the dynamite warfare. Kinl having made a long speech, in which he espoused the policy of the dynamiters, the following resolution was proposed by Patrick Corcoran, of Kilkenny, who, in conjunction with Captain James Murphy, of the United States, played an important rôle in the explosion at Clerkenwell in 1867:—'That, as the gauntlet has been thrown down, we accept the challenge and all the risks and dangers which the acceptance of such a challenge involves, and prosecute our campaign on the same lines as hitherto, but on a more extended scale and by the adoption of more vigorous measures—that is to say, by the carrying out of simultaneous explosions not merely in London, but also throughout the towns, cities, and villages of England.' After the reading of this resolution an amendment was proposed to the effect that the dynamiters should avoid sacrificing innocent people's lives as far as possible, and that they should confine their attacks to the barracks, arsenals, and war-ships of Great Britain; but it was rejected, and the above resolution was adopted, seven of the delegates voting in favour of it and four against it. In accord with the vow the dynamiters take on entering the conspiracy, the vote of a majority of a convention is law, and is implicitly obeyed by all. One of the delegates, who was a personal friend of the Nihilist present, then stood up and proposed that the dynamiters should enter into an alliance with a section of the Russian Nihilists who had made them overtures. Several Nihilists, he said, were ready to set fire to all parts of London if their services were accepted. The idea did not, however, find favour with the dynamiters, who therefore rejected the alliance with the Nihilists as impolitic, on the ground that the Russian Government, being England's enemy, was consequently an indirect friend of Ireland. The proposal to offer a reward for the assassination of the Prince of Wales was scouted as calculated to seriously damage the cause. One of the American delegates informed the convention that since the London explosion and the attempt to shoot Rossa the subscriptions to the dynamite fund had considerably increased. Two delegates were appointed by the convention to put themselves into communication with the secret agent of the Mahdi in Cairo. The object in view is to injure England by placing what the dynamiters call 'the resources of civilisation' at his disposal. It is probable that both these delegates, who are adepts in chemicals and expert engineers, will endeavour to reach the Mahdi's camp. After the general meeting a conclave of the delegates was held, at which none of the few spectators were allowed to assist."

RANDWICK RACES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I wish to draw attention to the dangerous exit provided for foot passengers from the Randwick racecourse.

There appears to be but one outlet for vehicles and foot passengers, and what with restive horses, bad drivers, and a pushing crowd, it is a wonder more accidents do not occur. It is absolutely dangerous to go from the course to the main road, especially just at the gateway.

During the time I was hemmed in at the gates I saw several narrow escapes, though fortunately no accidents. Is it fair to thus endanger the lives of women and children, to say nothing of the male visitors, who go out for a day's enjoyment? A gate solely for the use of foot passengers would be all that is required to ensure safety. Hoping something will be done to rectify the present state of things.

I am, &c., A STRANGER.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

AUSTRALIAN JOCKEY CLUB AUTUMN MEETING.

Patron: His Excellency the Right Hon. Lord Augustus Loftus, G.C.B. Under the management of the committee of the A. J. C. Judge: Mr. A. Town. Starter: Mr. W. Gannon. Handicapper: Mr. J. A. Scarr. Clerk of the course: Mr. J. Ashworth. Timekeeper: Hon. John Eales. Secretary: Mr. T. S. Clibborn.

SECOND (CUP) DAY—WEDNESDAY, APRIL 8.

As was fully anticipated, in consequence of the threatening aspect of the weather, the attendance at Randwick yesterday, although large, was not so great as on former occasions, or so numerous as it undoubtedly would have been had the weather been certain. From an early hour in the morning the sky was overcast, and up till noon there was every appearance of a heavy downpour of rain, and the outlook was such that it made a considerable difference in the attendance. Fortunately, however, for the more venturesome, the afternoon proved fine, with a cool exhilarating breeze, which rendered the meeting a somewhat enjoyable one. The time fixed for the first race was 1 o'clock, and it is unnecessary to add that by noon the scene along the Randwick-road was a very animated and exciting one. The start for the course commenced long before half-past 12 o'clock. The trams were largely patronised. The road out was lined with hansoms and omnibuses which followed one another at a great pace. There were also the usual number of spring-vans with their numerous passengers, including many a family party. Several four-horse drags, with as many passengers as they could conveniently carry, were also present, and, as may be well imagined, the trip out, if at times interesting, was rather too dusty to be much enjoyed. Thousands of persons were landed at the gates some time previous to the starting of the first event, and by the time the luncheon hour arrived the saddling paddock was well crowded. The grand stand, although not crowded to any extent, was very freely patronised. The St. Leger stand was filled, and some hundreds of persons, anxious, of course, to obtain as favourable a position as possible without the chief boundaries, assembled as near as possible to the straight running. A number of private vehicles were placed along the boundary fence, and the vehicles belonging to the members as usual were located in the southern end of the carriage paddock. The speculative spirit of the public was fully alive to the occasion, and between the events the saddling paddock was thronged by an eager and noisy crowd. The Permanent Artillery band was in attendance, and added considerably to the enjoyment of those persons in the stand by rendering some capital music on the lawn—which, by the bye, was comparatively deserted by the fair habitués. A few ladies, however, promenaded on the lawn, but as the afternoon wore on the breeze became so strong that some of them preferred to stroll on the opposite side, where, of course, they were protected from the cruelty of the elements. One or two pretty dresses were to be seen, but the costumes were for the most part such as would be considered suitable for a dull and threatening afternoon. There was the usual attendance of the "talent," with their various games for extracting money, but trade was only plied in one or two instances, and then under considerable difficulty. One or two arrests were made late in the afternoon, but as the offenders surrendered without any ado little or no sensation was created. Luncheon, which was served by the Compagnoni Catering Company under the grand stand, took place after the Maiden Stakes. It is understood that the club intend to make some inquiry with reference to some members of the ring having, it is alleged, infringed the rules by ready-money betting in the paddock. The rule which refers to the subject may in some instances be construed as a somewhat harsh one, and the matter will need very careful consideration.

Twenty-two left the paddock for the Flying Handicap, and Manchester was backed with so much confidence that at the last the absurdly short price of 4 to 1 was accepted, but he was never dangerous at any part, and Ellington astonished his most intimate friends by sailing home in front in excellent time. Matchlock declined for the Maiden Plate, and the honour of the stable was left to Angora, who had no difficulty in disposing of the rather moderate lot opposed to her. Two dozen Cup candidates were saddled, and nearly every horse in the race had a fair share of followers. Amongst those that were responsible for a lot of money were Reginald, who had Hales in the saddle, Normanby with Nicholson up, Helene, and Acolyte. Reginald looked thoroughly well, but never got into a good position until more than a mile and a half had been travelled; and Moonshee, whose condition was really excellent, never got out of the crowd. Helene's appearance gave evidence of the great care that had been bestowed upon her preparation, and Acolyte, though a trifle otherwise, was thoroughly fit. Sheet Anchor also had a lot of condition on his side, but in the face of it he receded in the market as the time approached, and from 7 to 1 saw 10 to 1 offered. Normanby was in the best possible condition, and Mr. Kite well deserved his win, for neither trouble nor expense was spared to bring the son of Gemma di Vergy to the post dressed in his best. On several previous occasions he disappointed his friends, but he stuck to their colours right manfully yesterday, and they were at last rewarded. It would be impossible for hands to have made Velocipede better, and had Normanby not had an artist like Nicholson in the saddle, the rich prize would have gone to the outsider, for it was only by the most resolute riding that Normanby got up in time, and then his victory was only scored by a short half head. Normanby was bred by his owner in the Bathurst district, and is by Gemma di Vergy from Kitty (the dam of Vergy), by Barbarian from Gipsy Girl, by Kingston from Black Bess, by Little John from the young English mare, by Boy Comerton from an imported mare. Wing fell when running well three furlongs from home, and his downfall interfered with the prospects of several horses. Lord of the Lake, who has so frequently failed to distinguish himself, gave somewhat of a surprise by running a really good horse, and as he was amongst the first flight all the way, his place at the finish was full of merit. Monte Christo was elected a firm first favourite for the Produce Stakes, but his want of condition found him out, and his stable companion Uralla won easily. Paul had the confidence of the public in the Selling Stakes, but could not get nearer than third to Rainbow and Florinda, who ran a dead heat, and the son of Lottery won the run off. Although the Sapling Stakes had a most open appearance, 2 to 1 was accepted about Eagle Grange, but Abner, a son of St. Albans, won easily. According to the conditions, the winner was put up for auction immediately after the race, and Mr. H. Osborne secured him, at a cost of 810 guineas, so that the club made a considerable amount of profit by the transaction. The following is an account of each race:—

Betting: 5 to 1 v. Manchester; 8 to 1 v. Ringmaster; 10 to 1 each v. Venetia, Mascotte, and His Worship; 12 to 1 each v. Rebus, King's Own, and Marie Louise; 15 to 1 each v. Ellington, Arsenal, and The Broker; 20 to 25 to 1 v. any other.

The flag was lowered to a pretty even start, and Florence, getting very quickly on her legs, jumped off with an advantage, while Rataplan was the last to leave the post. As soon as they got fairly going, Claudine ran to the front and led up the hill by a couple of lengths, attended by Florence, Buckingham, and Mascotte, while His Worship headed the others. They closed up at the bend, where Mascotte on the outside looked particularly dangerous, and Ellington in the centre began to come through his horses very fast. When just inside the distance Ellington appeared at the front, and, Claudine melting away, Mascotte ran into second place, attended by Marie Louise. Ellington then drew away and won cleverly by more than two lengths from Marie Louise, who finished up well, and beat Mascotte by a long neck. Then on pretty close terms came Claudine, His Worship, Venetia, Buckingham, and King's Own, while Ener and Rataplan were last. Time, 1 minute 15½ seconds.

THE MAIDEN STAKES, a sweepstakes of 5 sovs. each, 1 forfeit, with 150 sovs. added. Weights—2 years, 7st.; 3 years, 8st. 2lb.; 4, 5, 6 years, and aged, 8st. 7lb. Penalties for winning after entrance—once, 7lb.; twice or more, 10lb. Second horse, 20 sovs. from the prize. 1¼ mile.

Betting: 5 to 4 on Angora, 4 to 1 both v. Manrico and Clarendon, 5 to 1 v. Sir James, 7 to 1 v. any other.

The moment the flag dropped something came into collision with Angora, and swung her half round, so that she lost her place, and Crystal was the first to begin, followed by Sir James, and Phaon. After crossing the tan, Phaon and Sir James appeared at the front, but the latter bolted right out against the rails, and lost a deal of ground. Angora ran up second at the back of the course, where Clarendon was third, and Sir James began to overhaul his horses very rapidly. As soon as the hill was topped Angora ran to the front, and led round the home turn attended by Clarendon and Crystal, while Phaon died right out of it. Once in the straight the favourite was never asked to gallop, and won easily by nearly three lengths from Clarendon and Faro, a couple of lengths from whom came Phaon, attended by Manrico, Crystal, and Sir James. Time, 2 minutes 19½ seconds.

THE SYDNEY CUP, a handicap sweepstakes of 20 sovs. each, half forfeit, or 5 sovs. if declared by Wednesday, 18th March, 1885, with 500 sovs. added; second horse to receive 100 sovs., and third 50 sovs. from the prize. 2 miles.

Betting: 5 to 1 v. Reginald, 7 to 1 v. Normanby, 8 to 1 each v. Moonshee and Acolyte, 10 to 1 each v. Helene and Sheet Anchor, 15 to 1 each v. Lord Clifden, Coriolanus, First Demon, and Merlin, and 20 to 1 each v. Soldier Boy and Impulse, 25 to 1 v. any other.

At the first attempt the signal was given to a splendid start, Moonshee showing at the head of the van, while Sheet Anchor was the last to move. For the first couple of dozen strides it was difficult to tell what was at the front; but when they had settled into their strides and faced the hill, Lord of the Lake, Helene, Minerva, Prince Imperial, and Off Colour were seen to compose the first flight, and Prince Imperial, Helene, and Minerva turned into the straight on very even terms, and slightly in advance of Velocipede and Lord of the Lake, who was clear of a densely packed ruck. When half-way up the straight the leaders boxed up, and Lord of the Lake just led Velocipede past the stand, while on almost even terms with them came Prince Imperial, Minerva, Helene, and Anchorite, with the rest in a great heap, and whipped in by Coriolanus, Sheet Anchor, and Reginald, all three of which had been in bad places from the start. Velocipede showed Prince Imperial the way past Cutts' by a length, and at the latter's girths succeeded Minerva, Lord of the Lake, and Impulse, who were clustered and scarcely clear from Anchorite, a length from whom came Moonshee and Merlin. The three leaders raced together along the back of the course, where their immediate followers were Anchorite, Helene, Lord of the Lake, Merlin, Wing, Normanby, First Demon, and Moonshee. They went up the rising ground in something like the same order, and after passing the trainers' stand Velocipede settled down to his task in real earnest, and drawing away at every stride, led past the three-furlongs post by fully five lengths, and a great roar went up from the crowd that the despised outsider had his field in trouble. Carrying on the running at a great pace, he hugged the rails closely as he swept round the last turn and into the straight, with a bunch of colours and a forest of whips in pursuit. Wing had fallen at the three-furlongs post, and the accident interfered with several horses, and amongst them Normanby and Helene. When their heads were fairly turned for home, Lord of the Lake had got within three lengths of the Queenslander, and Normanby could be seen cutting down horse after horse, and making his way towards the front. He made one long-continued run from the distance, and passing Lord of the Lake, caught the fast-tiring Velocipede at every stride, and M'Auliffe was compelled to draw his whip. When 50 yards from home, Normanby, after having been interfered with by the riderless Wing, had reached the leader's girths, and answering every call like a racehorse, just got up under the whip in the last stride, and won a brilliant race, as far as the pair were concerned, by half a head on the post, amidst a scene of the most intense excitement. Lord of the Lake was third, nearly three lengths away; and a length from him came Reginald, attended by Merlin, First Demon, Helene, Anchorite, Lord Clifden, and Moonshee in a bunch, followed by Off Colour at the head of the crowd, the last of which were Impulse and Prince Imperial. Time, 3 minutes 35 seconds.

Betting: 6 to 4 on Monte Christo, 3 to 1 v. Uralla, 6 to 1 v. any other.

A splendid start commenced proceedings, and Uralla, getting very quickly on her legs, at once appeared at the front. After going a little more than a furlong Cardigan and Evie joined the leader, and Evie led up the hill and past the Trainers' Stand by a length, Uralla, Cardigan, Monte Christo, Algerian, and Cairo following with about a length between them. When half-way round the bend Uralla came again and led into the straight, but at the distance Cardigan and Cairo were hard upon her, and Monte Christo looked dangerous on the extreme left. The three leaders raced together for a few strides, when Uralla drew away, and won easily at the end by about three lengths from Cardigan and Cairo, who had only a head between them. Monte Christo was next, more than a length off, and two lengths from him came Algerian, two lengths in front of Evie. Time, 1 minute 33¼ seconds.

+ Dead heat.

Betting: 6 to 4 on Paul, 3 to 1 v. Rebus, 4 to 1 v. Rainbow, 6 to 1 v. any other.

Rebus jumped off in front, while Filibuster was the last to get going. Rebus led past Cutts's, along the far side of the course and up the hill, followed by Manrico, Albert Victor, and Paul, but the daughter of Glorious died out at the turn, and Paul took up a prominent position. He was soon joined by Florinda and Rainbow, and a fine race ensued, ending in a dead heat between Florinda and Rainbow, while Paul was a good third, and after him came Isonomy, Filibuster, and Manrico, with the others a long way out of it. Time, 2 minutes 12¼ seconds.

The run-off took place after the last race of the day, when Rainbow, on whom 2 to 1 was laid, made all the running, and won by three lengths. Time, 2 minutes 16½ seconds. The winner was put up for auction and bought in for the small sum of £27.

THE SAPLING STAKES, a sweepstakes of 5 sovs. each 1 forfeit, with 150 sovs. added. For two years old. Colts, 8st. 7lb.; fillies, 8st. 5lb. Second horse 25 sovs. from the prize. The winner to be sold for 200 sovs. If entered to be sold for 300 sovs., to carry 7lb. extra. Five furlongs.

Betting: 6 to 4 v. Eagle Grange, 3 to 1 v. Abner, 4 to 1 v. Minorah, 5 to 1 v. Corday, 6 to 1 v. any other.

A very good start sent Abner and Belle Mahone away in front, and the former holding his own, won rather easily from Magnifier, who was very closely attended by Discord, Eagle Grange, and Minorah, and the others finished together three lengths away. Time, 1 minute 3¾ seconds.

YEARLING SALES.

From our list of the yearlings sold at Randwick yesterday, the following, which were disposed of by Mr. George Kiss, were omitted:—On account of Mr. John M'Quade: A bay colt, by Rapid Bay from Cremorne, to Mr. Richards, for 70 guineas; a bay filly, by Rapid Bay from Ivy by The Barb, to Mr. Cook, for 65 guineas; a bay filly, by Rapid Bay from Lady Emily by Kyogee, to Mr. Barton, for 50 guineas. Mr. T. C. Clibborn will continue his sale on the Randwick racecourse to-day. Luncheon will be served at 12 o'clock, and the sale will commence immediately afterwards, when a number of very fashionably bred yearlings will be offered; and as there are a good many buyers in town, some spirited bidding is sure to take place.

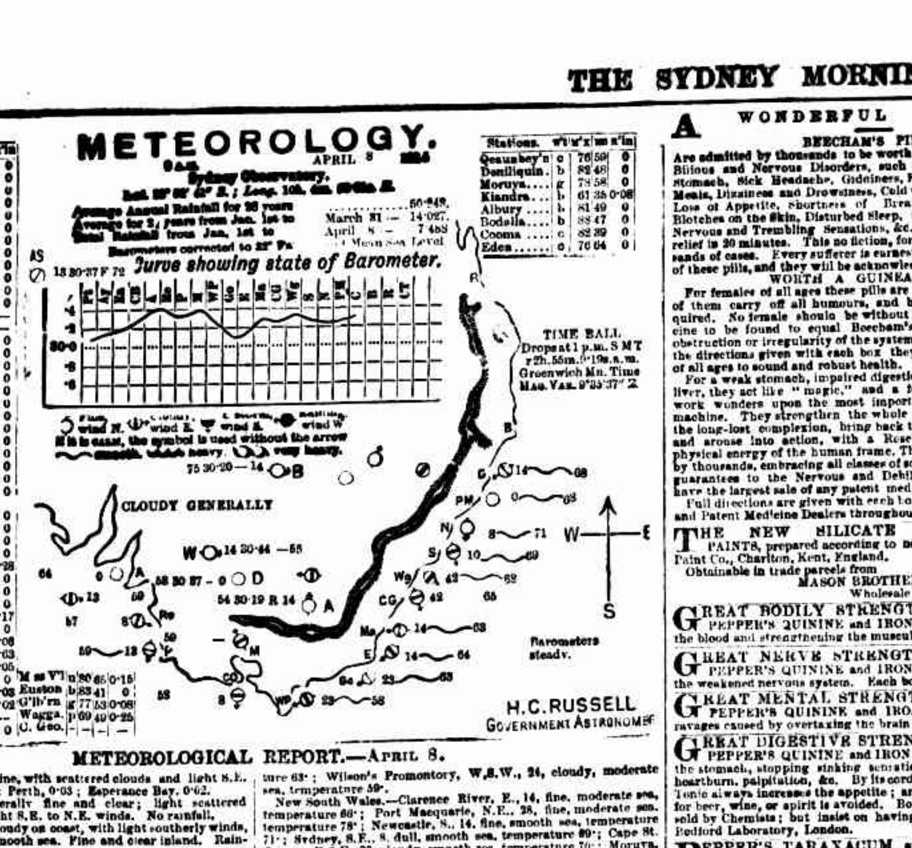

CRICKET.

A match was played on Tuesday afternoon on the Hope Cup wickets, Moore Park, between two teams representing the tobacconists and the police. The tobacconists went first to the wickets, but through the splendid bowling of Gorman and Mahor for the police they were disposed of for 52 runs. The police followed, and scored 97 runs before the last wicket fell. Power, for the police, played a splendid innings for 40, never giving a chance. The well-known veterans Nat Thompson and Charles Bannerman played with the tobacconists.
